Former Sheriff Killed

John Hostler, 78, Caruthersville, former sheriff of Pemiscot county was killed Wednesday afternoon at 2:15, in an accident on route A, two miles east of Wardell.

He was driving a 1962 Buick, when a 1950 Plymouth, driven by Claude Mealer, 38, Wardell, weaved in the left lane of the roadway and struck the Hostler car headon.

Harry Drew, 65, Caruthersville, a passenger in the Hostler car, received cuts on the head.

Mealer received a fracture of the right leg, a possible fractured jaw, and according to the patrol will be arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Both of the injured men were taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial Hosptal in Hayti.

Four persons were injured in an accident yesterday at 4:45 p.m. on highway 67, seven and one - half miles north of Poplar Bluff.

A 1961 Dodge, driven by James Gilbert, 35, Poplar Bluff, started to pass a 1965 Plymouth, driven by Ina Love, 67, Springfield. As the Gilbert car started to pass, he struck the Plymouth in the rear, causing the latter to spin around. In the spin the cars hit a second time.

The impact caused the Love car to go down an embankment, and strike a tree, and was struck a third time by the Dodge. The Plymouth was completely demolished.

Injured and taken to a Poplar Bluff hospital was the driver of the Dodge, who received cuts on his face; a passenger in the Dodge, Tressie Jackson, 45, Leeper, received injuries to her side.

The driver of the Plymouth, received cuts over her entire body, while a passenger in her car, Sibel Cox, 67, Springfield, injured her left knee, and also received cuts and bruises.

Gilbert was arrested for driving while intoxicated, and also for having a suspended drivers license, according to the highway patrol.

Bid Opening Postponed

The opening bids for the construction of a factory addition to the Canvas Products Company, scheduled to be opened today, were postponed until June 3, at 2 p.m. at the city hall. The announcement was made by Fielding Potashnick, president of the Sikeston Development Company.

The postponement was due to the lack of mechanical details having been omitted in the original proposals.

Enlargement of the building would add 27,000 square feet to the existing building, to arrange loading and unloading, manufacturing and storage facilities. The addition will also add additional employment.

Plans may be obtained at the office of Whitworth and Associates, architects and engineers, 412 Tanner street.

Turncoat Crosses Over To Hong Kong

By FORREST EDWARDS

HONG KONG AP -- Korean War turncoat Clarence Adams arrived in Hong Kong today, leaving only two of 21 self-exiled former American prisoners of war in Communist China.

Adams, from Memphis, Tenn., crossed the Lowu border bridge 23 miles north of the city with his Chinese wife and their children, Louis, 3, and Della, 4.

The consulate had been expecting Adams since the Chinese notified the Hong Kong Red Cross he would cross the border May 9. But Adams told newsmen he had not planned to leave China until this week.

"I think maybe there was a mistake in the date," he said.

The last was Morris Wills of Fort Ann, N.Y., who crossed last Oct. 19.

Adams said he did not know whether Howard Adams and Veneris were planning to leave China.

"I have been working at the foreign language press," he said. "They are studying at Peking University, and I've had very little contact with them for many months."

Adams said he and his family would fly to the United States "just as soon as our travel documents are ready and my mother sends us the travel money which she wrote she would send as soon as we reached Hong Kong."

A U. S. consulate spokesman said issuance of travel documents for the family could take from one to three weeks.

While Adams talked to Platt, Mrs. Adams, the former Liu Lin-fang, told newsmen in Chinese they had decided to leave China because Adams wanted to see his mother, Mrs. Gladys Peoples of Memphis.

"He has not seen his mother since before he went to war 16 years ago," Mrs. Adams said.

New Column To Be In Saturdays Paper

Jenkin Lloyd Jones, dynamic, globe - trotting editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, will share AN EDITOR'S OUTLOOK with readers each Saturday as a regular weekend columnist for the Daily Standard.

Beginning in Saturdays issue, Jones' column promises to examine and clarify a cross section of issues, problems and events that cross the desk of a busy editor during the course of a newsmaking day in his life.

Jones declares that partisan politics per se are OUT as far as his column is concerned. So is anger, just for the sake of creating controversy. "I think we overdo our viewing with alarm," Jones says. "The 'professional angry man' is soon reduced to studiously misinterpreting the motives of others, which leads to cynicism and eventual dullness. If you go through life with your whistle cord tied down, people will find you merely noisy and eventually you'll run out of steam!"

Jones doesn't intend to run out of steam. "There are a lot of good things going on in the world and I'm going to try to find a lot of things that I think are worth cheering over."

This doesn't mean that Jones won't nurture a good strong "beef" once in awhile. "I'll call 'em as I see 'em", he declares. "An independent press continues to be our greatest asset in protecting all the other freedoms so important to the future of mankind. Without an independent press leading the way for a free and informed people, our democratic principles could not long survive."

When Jones DOES take up a cause, the results are often far flung. A few months ago he received wide acclaim for his keynote speech, entitled "America's Moral Crisis," at the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. A reprint of this speech in the Reader's Digest is said to have received more requests

Memorial Day Story On Memorial Gifts

In the sorrow that follows the loss of a loved one close to us, a relative or friend, to cancer, there is the wish to honor the departed.

At times like these, many find solace in dedicating a memorial gift to the American Cancer Society. This contribution provides a way to perpetuate the memory of a life that has been lost. It offers a way to prevent the further suffering of others.

Memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society help in many ways: they support cancer research in hospitals, laboratories, and clinics. They provide fellowships for doctors and scientists. They help train manpower needed to carry out future research. They also make possible the service programs which provide direct and specific help for those now stricken with cancer.

Because Memorial Day each year draws our attention to those who have died, it seems appropriate at this time to remember them with memorial gifts. Such a contribution, large or small, brings the moment of final victory closer.

The Scott County Unit of the American Cancer Society will be pleased to accept memorial gifts. They may be sent to Billie Burch - P.O. Box 809- Sikeston, Missouri.

A dignified card will be sent to the family of the deceased.

Two Counties Purchase Abandoned Bridge

Butler County and Stoddard County have jointly purchased a bridge across the St. Francis River which was abandoned by the Frisco Railroad, and it is planned to have the bridge in use this year.

Loren White, Presiding Judge of the Butler County Court said the bridge, at a location commonly known as Hodge's Ferry, near Rombauer, was purchased for a price of $500, $250 for each county. Judge White added that he believed the bridge, when ready for use, would open a new trade route into Poplar Bluff.

Judge White said that the bridge will be opened this year and traffic will drive across the levee to Foothill Road and then travel to Rombauer to Route Z.

The bridge will have to be floored and side rails will have to be consturcted before being used by vehicles.

Judge White stated that future plans call for opening a route on the abandoned right-of-way to Rombauer. He added that six additional bridges had been purchased along the abandoned right-of-way and the cost to Butler County was $750. An additional $250 was donated for the purchase of the birdges.

He said that six persons had been instrumental in negotiations for the purchase of the bridges. They are Bill Clarkson, Clyde Crawford, Lyman Mays, Lewis Brown, Dale Bond and Loyce Daniels.

Stoddard County is expected to open the other end of the road from the bridge to complete the new route.

Montgomery-Sells Trial Reaching High Pitch, Witness Sobs

Steps Retraced Leading Up To Fatal Accident

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, questioned her yesterday about events of the night Miss Glenda Wiles, 24, was killed in an automobile wreck at 1:45 a.m. Oct. 14, 1959.

She testified about a visit to the King's Club with Joel A. Montgomery, Miss Bobbie L. Vance and three other men and about later stops at the Petroleum Club and the Skyway at the Peabody.

Q. -- Did you know Mr. Montgomery before that night?

A. -- I had met him several times before but I had never been out with him.

Q. -- Did you know he was married?

A. -- No, I did not.

Mrs. Sells said she had one drink at the King's Club early in the evening and that Mr. Montgomery ordered a second drink but that she gave it to a piano player to play a request for her.

She said at the Petroleum Club one drink was ordered for her but she did not drink it and the ice melted. She said a second drink, Scotch and water, was ordered and she drank about half of it before leaving for the Skyway, taking with her a third drink which had been ordered.

Mrs. Sells said she gave that drink to a friend of Mr. Montgomery's in the Skyway. She told of Mr. Montgomery, Miss Vance and herself going to a garage on Front Street and getting into Mr. Montgomery's car.

Q. -- Had you had much or little driving experience?

A. -- I had been driving for a year and a half or two years, but I didn't own a car and I didn't drive much.

Q. -- Did you ever drive a car like that before. . . equipped with power brakes and power steering?

A. -- No, sir. . . .

Mrs. Sells said the car ran out of gasoline on Front and that occupants of another car offered aid. She said the second car left before she started the Montgomery car again. Occupants of the second car testified Tuesday Mrs. Sells ran red lights at Front and Monroe, Main and Monroe, and Second and Monroe. They said they followed the Montgomery car.

Q. -- What was the condition of the traffic light when you reached it at Monroe and Front—

A. -- It was green. . . I made the turn.

Q. -- What was the condition of the light at Main and Monroe?

A. -- It was red. . . I stopped.

Mrs. Sells said she did not recall the condition of the lights on Monroe at Second and Third.

She then testified about the lights at Monroe and Fourth and at Monroe and Wellington, the wreck scene.

She said she agreed to a drunkometer test at the hospital but could not blow up the balloon, because of an injured lip. Mrs. Sells said when she awakened at the hospital the morning after the accident she was chained to the bed.

Mr. Schaeffer yesterday hammered at Police Inspector H. S. Bivens about police work in the case.

Q. -- Did you make a written report to the attorney general's office about your investigation?

A. -- If I did I don't remember.

Q. -- You mean as chief investigating officer of this whole shebang you made no written report?

A. -- No, that was not my responsibility. It was done by officers under me.

Later Inspector Bivens said he conferred with the attorney general's office. "I asked if Mr. Montgomery could be indicted on the charges on the facts I had. I was told the charges to place against Mrs. Sells and they said they didn't think any charges would be placed against Mr. Montgomery."

Reading from the transcript of Mrs. Sells' first trial in 1960, Mr. Schaeffer showed that Inspector Bivens did not testify then that Mrs. Sells told him she ran a red light or that Mr. Montgomery told her to.

Q. -- Did you anywhere in the former trial testify to any such statement?

A. -- I did not. . .

Q. -- Whom in the attorney general's office did you bring this (statement) to the attention of?

A. -- Mr. (Braxton) Gandy (former chief assistant in the office).

Mr. Montgomery's attorney Don G. Owens also questioned Inspector Bivens sharply.

The police officer said he tried to talk with Miss Vance at a hospital but because of her injuries he could not. He said police tried to contact her later but could not do so.

Q. -- You have never taken a statement from her?

A. -- No, sir. . . .

Q. -- As police officer in charge of the investigation can you state what precipitated . . . the indictment against Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, sir.

Q. -- Was it a surprise to you?

A. -- Yes, it was a surprise to me.

Inspector Bivens said he did not know an indictment was being sought against Mr. Montgomery until he was told the case was going before the Grand Jury in January, 1962. He said police had no knowledge after Mrs. Sells' first trial that Mr. Montgomery would be indicted.

A Truth

This is the truth. Yesterday a man and woman in Sikeston walked into one of the furniture stores and purchased $1,200 worth of furniture.

The man went back to the store this morning and asked them for his check back, saying, "me and my wife have separated."

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells

Mrs. Sells Takes Stand

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells broke down on the witness stand yesterday afternoon during cross-examination on why she was driving millionaire Joel Montgomery's car at the time of a fatal wreck Oct. 14, 1959.

Mrs. Sells was the first defense witness in the involuntary manslaughter trial of her and Mr. Montgomery, a former Memphian who is now a civic leader in Sikeston, Mo.

"Did he ever say why he wanted you to drive?" asked Asst. Atty. Gen. James Beasley.

Mrs. Sells hesitated a moment and replied, "I don't remember."

"Do you recall . . ." Mr. Beasley started another question, but Mrs. Sells broke into loud weeping and put her head down on the side of the stand.

The defense then asked for a short recess and Mrs. Sells was taken to the rest room. She resumed her testimony after about 20 minutes. The trial was recessed for the day at 6:15 p.m. about 30 minutes after Mrs. Sells returned.

Earlier, under questioning from defense attorneys, she denied Mr. Montgomery told her to run any red lights before the crash at Monroe and Wellington, where Miss Glenda Wiles, 24, was killed.

She also denied running any red lights that night and she said she was not intoxicated.

Police Insp. H. S. Bivens testified earlier yesterday that Mrs. Sells told him at a hospital after the wreck that she had run the red light at the time of the wreck and that Mr. Montgomery had told her to run it. She denied making the statement.

"As you approached Monroe and Fourth (the intersection just west of Monroe and Wellington) what happened?" asked defense attorney James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer.

"Just as we approached the ight it changed to orange," Mrs. Sells said. "I started to stop. Mr. Montgomery said, "Go on through. You have plenty of time.' So I went on through."

She said the light was not red when she last saw it. Mrs. Sells, then 21, who was driving Mr. Montgomery's car in which he and Miss Bobbie Vance were passengers, said she speeded up to about 40 to 45 miles per hour in the block approaching Wellington. She said she and Miss Vance were talking as they neared the intersection.

"When we were about two cars lengths away from the light it turned orange," Mrs. Sells said. "I speeded up a little. I was going through it. Miss Vance said something. She may have screamed or something . . . she had some type of reaction."

Mrs. Sells said she did not see the car traveling south on Wellington in which Miss Wiles was a passenger and which was being driven by Miss Alice K. Gassaway. She said she may have seen the headlights.

On Tuesday, Miss Vance testified the Montgomery car came to a yellow light at Monroe and Fourth and Mr. Montgomery told Mrs. Sells to "run this one and run them all."

The state rested its case in the trial at 3 p.m. yesterday before Mrs. Sells' testimony.

Mrs. Sells said although she visited night spots with Miss Vance and Mr. Montgomery before the wreck she had only one drink and half of another.

Mr. Schaeffer and Don G. Owens, attorney for Mr. Montgomery, sharply attacked handling of the case by police and the attorney general's office.

Quizzed by Mr. Schaeffer, Inspector Bivens conceded he did not testify in Mrs. Sells' first trial in 1960 that she told him she ran a red light. However, he said he had reported Mrs. Sells' statement to Braxton Gandy, then chief assistant in the attorney general's office and to the Shelby County Grand Jury. Inspector Bivens said he did not question Miss Gassaway after the accident. He said she was too badly injured to give a statement immediately.

Woman Injured While Making Escape

Mrs. Barbara Keefer, 415 Ruth, has skinned and bruised knees today after she fell last night fleeing from her house that was being broken into by an unknown person.

Mrs. Keefer said she heard someone trying to enter the house at all the windows on the west side and that the screen on her back door had been cut.

She said that when she heard him getting in the window in the front bedroom she ran from the house, crossed the street to a neighbor's yard and her knees gave away due to her fright.

Police got to the scene shortly but could find no trace of the person.

A book was knocked from a table in the bedroom and was found lying on the floor.

FAMINE AND THE MONSOON

THE MONSOON bursts over Ceylon toward the end of this month and then it inches up the Indian peninsula. It brings both punishment and promise. It should end more than a year of drought which has brought an undeclared famine to India. But it could prevent the shipment of emergency food into Orissa state, as it did just 100 years ago, in May 1866.

Famine and drought are no strangers to the Indian subcontinent. Orissa state always has been the worst hit. But this year's drought-caused hunger has been complicated by bad administration at the state and perhaps the federal level and by what appears to be an unwillingness to face facts.

Thus India's Food Minister, C. G. Subramanian, states blandly: "There have been no deaths from starvation in India," while newspaper reporters are sending out estimates of famine deaths ranging from 50 to 200. Subramanian says that the people who have died in Orissa and other states perhaps had "suffered from various diseases for a long time -- such as tuberculosis, diabetes." This kind of circumlocution is a good deal like saying a man who has been killed by a truck was going to die of lung cancer anyway.

THE INDIAN CENTRAL GOVERNMENT on May 16 allotted another $4.2 million for relief work in Orissa state. That amount brings to almost $8 1/2 million the emergency grants to the state, where about 25 per cent of the population is suffering malnutrition from the effects of last summer's severe drought.

The government was slow to inaugurate relief work. Up until recently the problem in Orissa, particularly in the economically and socially backward western part of the state, has been as much a shortage of purchasing power as of food. Rice and at times other food are generally available at price-controlled, government-operated "fair price" shops.

Orissa is the center of India's rice bowl. Normally more than 8 million tons of the grain are grown there every year. This year the lack of rain has caused a shortfall estimated as high as 7 million tons.

AFTER 14 YEARS of much touted planning, the Indian people cannot get their basic necessities -- rice, wheat, and sugar, for example -- in adequate quantities or at reasonable prices. India already consumes half as much of the annual wheat production of the United States as we do ourselves.

President Johnson now has determined that American aid must not become so automatic and unquestioned that India will feel relieved of its obligation to feed itself. Fruit of the recent discussions in Washington between the President and India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi budded in mid-May with the announcement that India would collaborate with the American International Oil Company (AIOC) to establish a 200,000-ton fertilizer plant in Madras. Seven U. S. commercial banks are advancing AIOC a $37 million loan.

Fertilizers are the key to India's new crash food program. Mrs. Gandhi had to weather much left-wing criticism to push the fertilizer deal through. Even the so-called ginger group in her own Congress Party was sniping. The deal is significant because it may trigger other co-operative arrangements. The aim is 2 1/2 million tons of Indian-produced fertilizer by 1970, as against present production of about 400,000 tons.

A NICE PLACE TO VISIT

Tell a New Yorker that his home town is noisy, dirty, rude and expensive and he will readily agree. A certain discomfort has always been part of the price of living in the country's biggest and most exciting city. Lately, however, the tribulations of being a New Yorker have begun to outweigh the compensating joys. The old saw, "It's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there," may not be so laughable after all.

New York seems intent on acting out E. M. Forster's story, "The Machine Stops," in which the huge mechanism that controls the world starts to run down and finally sputters to a halt. An alarming number of machines have ground to a halt in New York in recent memory. The lights went out last November. The subway system greeted the New Year by not running. Some or all of the newspapers have been on strike three times in four years. Long Island Rail Road diesel trains stayed in their yards on May 10, and, not to be outdone, metropolitan taxi drivers went on strike the following day.

That should be enough, but it isn't. New Yorkers recently got official confirmation of what they had long suspected, that they breathe the country's dirtiest air. A prolonged drought -- which has shown signs of abating -- forced ex-Mayor Robert F. Wagner to impose semi-voluntary water rationing. One half of all American drug addicts live in New York. The Broadway theatre depends more and more on mediocre musicals and imported British drama. Even the Yankees lost the winning habit.

Mayor John V. Lindsay inherited the task of changing all this, of shoring up New York's glamor and self-respect. Unpopular measures, such as higher taxes, were called for, and Lindsay has not hesitated to urge them. The response to date has been less than enthusiastic. Middle-class whites continue to migrate to the suburbs, and the New York Stock Exchange has threatened to set up shop across the Hudson in New Jersey. If New York is "the nation's thyroid gland," as Christopher Morley once wrote, it has developed a goiter.

A FANTASTIC RECORD

Missouri has seen many governors in her day. And Missourians have seen many governors flop after even the first session with the legislature.

BUT NOW ALONG comes a fellow by the name of Governor Warren E. Hearnes, who has had not one session of the Missouri legislature, but two of them. And he comes out of both sessions even more popular than when he first went into office.

There has to be an explanation of some kind for this remarkable man in his own right.

He had served in the house of representatives as a young man. He had earned the right to be speaker of the house. He handled himself well and he earned the respect of his fellow lawmakers.

Then he stepped up to the post of secretary of state. He never lost touch with members of the legislature.

THEN HE DECIDED to seek the governorship. Running without much support and especially running against the Establishment, Warren E. Hearnes went up and down the state of Missorui, pleading his cause. His earnestness impressed thousands of Missourians.

Enough were they impressed that Warren E. Hearnes walked off with the Democratic nomination that few believed he could win. But he had the determination and right by his side was the charming Betty Hearnes, who doesn't take a back seat to her husband in the political field.

We have heard remarks made that during his campaign of almost two years, the then secretary of state trudged up and down, up and down, weary, tired and frightened every inch of the way. Well, it paid off.

And so have his two sessions of the Missouri legislature. Members of the senate and house probably don't always agree with Governor Hearnes, but we doubt if there is one single person in either the senate or the house who doubts his honesty and his integrity.

HIS FIRST legislative session was almost unbelievable. He accomplished more than any other governor ever accomplished in one session. He had his views on what he believed would be good for Missouri. And he got almost what he wanted.

Then came the special session that ended last week. And it was the same story. Governor Hearnes' batting average was well at the top again. And it was the same sincerity, the same desire to serve citizens of Missouri, the same honesty he has always shown that brought him to the close of another successful session.

It isn't until 1968 that Missouri will select another governor. It might be advisable to call off any election plans for that year, because just as certain as election days rolls around in 1968 and just as certain if the name Warren E. Hearnes appears as a candidate for governor, the verdict could be reached right now.

WARREN E. HEARNES will be named to a second term as governor of Missouri. It couldn't happen to a nicer fellow and the state of Missouri couldn't be more blessed than to have him as governor for another four years.

One reader of this column asked a question about the liability of a back-seat driver for an accident, and the answer may surprise you.

Q: "It seems to me I've heard somewhere that a passenger who directs the driver to drive in a way that causes an accident is just as guilty as the driver. Am I right?" Q. R., Spring Valley, N. Y.

A: Traffic Law, and numerous court cases in most states, hold the back-seat driver as liable as the driver. If a passenger induces a driver to turn into a one-way street, and a collision results, the officer can issue a citation both to the driver and his passenger.

Another reader writes not a question, but a suggestion. Says R. D. of Montgomery, Ohio: "I used to have trouble with pranksters stealing my license plate. But, I made a slip-in frame that bolts to the inside of my trunk in the space left after I sawed out the section depressed for mounting the plate on the outside."

May we add that a license plate inside the trunk also is less likely to get dirty. A license plate that is obscured is no help for drivers injured in accidents who need to be identified quickly. When the plate is reflective, mud and grime also reduce the light-reflecting properties that can save your life at night.

Q: "How much tax do I pay when I buy a new car?" P. B., Drexel Hill, Penn.

A: The average amount of Federal excise tax alone is $225. To that you must add state and local sales tax, and use tax.

It is interesting to note that the $1.8 billion the Federal government derived last year from the automotive excise tax goes into the general funds of the U. S. Treasury. It does not support the Federal-aid highway program, as does most other Federal automotive tax.

WRITE'EM OR WEEP!!

At the bitter end of the President's long-delayed Labor Message came the tail that wagged the dog -- the reluctant and apologetic recommendation that Congress remove from the Taft-Hartley Act the 44 words of Section 14 (b) that empower the states to protect their workers against compulsory unionism.

This recommendation was offered, the President said, "with the hope of reducing conflicts in our national labor policy that for several years have divided Americans in various states." The division rises from the fact that the citizens of 19 states have availed themselves of the labor freedom made possible by 14 (b) while those of 31 states have not as yet done so. Simply stated, the President would remove the "conflict" by scuttling the right to work without paying union dues where it is now state law, while terminating the chance of ever having such liberty in all the others.

The President did not say he is asking repeal of 14 (b) to pay off his election debt to the AFL-CIO chieftains who ordered out their troops and opened the union treasuries to campaign for him in a big and effective way. If this is not so, Mr. Johnson might have achieved his stated desire to "ensure uniform application of our national labor relations policy" by proposing a Federal open-shop law ensuring to all workers in all states the right and privilege of voluntary unionism!

And this reform might have been accomplished far more easily and have added considerably more luster to the LBJ "image." Every Congressman knows -- and certainly the President should -- that the American people do not want compulsory unionism. The latest of several public opinion polls attesting to this pegs the opposition at two-to-one. No less an authority than Speaker McCormack has expressed doubt of enough House votes to pass a repealer of 14 (b).

But it would be foolhardy to think that a President with LBJ's reputation on Capitol Hill would now ask "early and favorable consideration" of this proposal if he did not feel sure of getting it.

If the President has his way, the freedom to join or not to join a union will, overnight, become a bitter memory. Unhorsed for a time in 19 states, the membership drives of the labor bosses restored to the saddle will make Genghis Khan look like a Boy Scout. But it cannot happen if every American who wants right-to-work laws will tell his Congressman and his Senators so --and PUT IT IN WRITING. A majority in both houses will support 14 (b) -- if their constituents support them. Without support, we should expect Administration pressures to insure a majority.

Better to write today than blame yourself tomorrow.

MAN OF AMBITION

It is refreshing, in an era when millions of Americans look to Big Government for support, and where other millions mold their personalities to the cautious stereotype of Big Industry's "organization man", to hear an authentic voice speaking out on behalf of the Man of Ambition.

The Horatio Alger hero, determined to build a career out of humble beginnings, still has a role on the American scene. Such a one is Walter H. Simson of New Jersey, who, in October 1929, foresaw the need for a better electric light bulb and founded Duro-Test Corporation. While the industry giants and some 200 scrambling small manufacturers fought the battle of price, he set his course for greater serviceability and specialization.

Today his company ranks fourth in its field. The giants remain, engulfing a market with sheer volume and accessibility; the small companies, for the most part, have fallen by the wayside. But Duro-Test has prospered with products for industrial and for home use, many of which provide special effects or serve special needs for markets which the volume-minded ignore.

Walter Simson's is a refreshing voice which gives us a necessary reminder that there are rewards in our society for a young man with imagination.

HIGH COST OF EATING

Americans spent more for food in 1965 -- about six per cent more -- yet at the same time spent less.

The paradox is explained by the fact that average income after taxes was up by six-and -a-half per cent over 1964, meaning that while food spending increased in absolute amounts, as a percentage of income it declined.

The total national food bill was $85.5 billion, reports the Institute of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota. This averaged out to about $439 for each citizen. Averages are deceiving, however.

Single consumers spent an estimated $675 for food compared to about $570 per person for a two-person family and $285 per person for a family of six or more.

Americans spent another $12 billion, says the institute, for alcoholic beverages.

H. L. Hunt Says

THE TWO-PARTY SYSTEM

Because the two-party system seems so natural to us and we have known it in full vigor for almost all of our history as a nation, it is sometimes hard to remember that in most of the world it has hardly been tried, and where tried has very rarely worked. It has firmly established itself only in the English-speaking countries.

The two-party system is the best way to run government in a free country, but it is also the most difficult. It is constantly being pulled in two opposite directions. It is pulled toward a single-party system by those who want to build an all-powerful executive which would control politics as well as government. It is pulled toward a multi-party system by those who in their enthusiasm for causes, just and unjust, refuse to recognize the need for working and dealing with people who do not always agree completely with their ideas.

A one-party system creates a full-scale dictatorship almost immediately. A multi-party system divides a nation into feuding factions, breaking down into smaller and smaller groups, leading to disorganization and chaos out of which a dictator emerges.

Communist dictatorship in Russia is the result of a one-party system. Charles De Gaulle's dictatorship in France is the result of a multi-party system. Though the two systems are different, their results are the same.

If we would preserve freedom in these United States, we must retain and strengthen the two-party system, which today is very seriously weakened. Public-spirited citizens will make this a primary task for this election year. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Inside Story Of Small Bands Behind Britain's Runaway Strike.

New York: -- It took just one trans-Atlantic telephone call to corroborate this columnist's belief that small bands of men can cripple a nation.

They need only be strategically placed. There need not be many cells. A small network of loners can pull it.

That's what happened on the British docks -- loners, "extremists," reformers in name only, Communists and a personality cult called Trotskyites have for years been working 'round the clock to get at London's jugular.

At 12:01 a.m. May 16 they did so, despite the power of the moderate leaders of the English National Union of Seamen (NUS).

There was rehearsal for all this which led to Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government declaring a State of Emergency.

This declaration itself is fantastic since Her Majesty's Minister of Labor is Ray Gunter, a former union leader himself, as are Deputy Prime Minister George Brown and Frank Cousins, who went into the cabinet straight away from the presidency of England's largest union, its transport workers.

That rehearsal came in 1960. Then, an unauthorized runaway dock stoppage ran four weeks and cost $60 million and brutally damaged Britain's economy.

The five men who led the wildcatting dockers then won so strong a following that today they are on the executive council of the seamen's union -- and virtually forced the May 16 stoppage.

Right off it should be reported that the official strike leader, a gentle chap by name of William Hogarth, NUS General Secretary, is a moderate. He is anti-Communist. They fight him with all the gut-gang tactics in their revolutionary handbook. He has beaten them time and time again. He did not want this mammoth waterfront stoppage. But they forced him into it.

He and his 15-man negotiating committee originally had recommended accepting the shipowners' hefty final offer. But the "extremists" would have none of it.

Like lights on a pin ball machine, the "extremists" popped up all over. Mark well the original five who led the wildcatter back in '60. They promised the seamen the world of tomorrow, today.

There is the grim Jim Slater, who led the 1960 strike on the Northeast Coast; Charles Hodgins, who was the '60 rebel "boss" at Hull; J. Worthington, their man at Liverpool; P. Nortsway organizer of the unofficial walkouts at Cardiff. Also Joe Kenney, imprisoned for a month at Southampton after he walked off a ship about to sail.

In six years they made their way with their reform-the-union band onto the powerful 48-man executive council.

There are others. Some are men who rove. They pop up in the construction trades, the auto plants and on the docks. And always trouble pops up with them.

One of the rovers joined the seamen's union, paid his initiation fee, paid no more dues and turned up as a militant on the London docks. Another rejoined the NUS after an 11-year lapse. Some of the strike committee suddenly find themselves led by men who never saw a ship except from shoreside.

With them come new committees. In '60 it was the National Seamen's Reform Movement. Now it is the London Seafarers' United Committee, some of whose members simply don't belong to the seafarers' union.

A band, described in the phone conversation as "operating shrilly in the West County" is the Bristol Channel Seafarers' Liaison Committee. Its leader is George Foulser. He has not had a seamen's registry card there since 1946.

And fully sprinkled along the embankment are a series of Communist and Trotskyite cells. Some of these units were spawned by men who operated in the U. S. These I spotted when in London not too long ago.

In his salty but quiet way, General Secretary Hogarth loathes them the most. He sees them as men dedicated to the disruption of the union, the Merchant Navy and the economy of the country. In turn, they all hate him because he is a sophisticated in-fighter, loyal to his union's 62,500 men, and abundantly devoted to his country.

To the cells, his patriotism in behalf of the proletariat and nation is poison. So all the bands, for one reason or another -- power or international politics -- concentrate on Hogarth. Their influence on the union's national board was strong enough to out-vote him and call for a strike.

Thus Hogarth was faced with fighting his own board and thus possibly losing control of the rank and file -- or taking the strike lead and through such control preventing it from smashing Britain's foreign trade -- its lifeblood.

And thus today he is the despised one, though he fought to avert the chaos.

It is a drama for American labor leaders to watch closey.

It is a script to be read and re-read by those cynics outside the labor movement, too, who pooh-pooh the inherent threat of small bands of men.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Behind the President's vigorous fight-to-the-end statements to cheering Democrats in Chicago and Long Beach last week were some significant cables from Saigon. They reported that the morale of the Viet Cong is bad, that U. S. armed forces are taking more and more prisoners, that the war is going better than ever for the United States.

Based on these reports, the President, for the first time, sees light at the end of the tunnel. He figures that victory is now within sight and that his firm position will be vindicated.

It is not clear whether these military estimates take into consideration the political upheaval in the cities of South Viet Nam. And some joy-killers recalled that the military once before gave the President a firm estimate that the war would be over in 12 months.

Nevertheless the President is highly pleased with the battle reports and they have given him new confidence in dealing with some of his old liberal friends in the senate.

One point he constantly reminds them is that "it takes two to tango," in other words, it takes two to sit down at the peace table.

To one prominent "Dove" senator he said: "You go and arrange a peace conference anywhere in the world. I authorize you to arrange it. I not only will attend, but I'll be there ahead of any of them."

CAUTIOUS ESCALATION

Best description of Lyndon Johnson's technique in Viet Nam is that of a cautious escalator and simultaneously a vigorous olive branch pusher. While conducting an all - out war policy publicly, privately he has made conciliatory moves toward the Chinese which right - wing criticis will brand as revolutionary when they leak out.

Invariably when the military have recommended escalation, he has edged away from "the brink." When they first proposed hitting North Viet Nam with B-52 bombers sent all the way from Guam, his reaction was: "Aren't there any targets in South Viet Nam?" The military replied in the negative.

"You go back and draw up a list of targets in South Viet Nam," was his order.

Later, of course, he did bomb the North.

His general direction in guiding the war is always up. It is intensified, not relaxed. He did relax during the 1966-Viet Nam new year to let the "Doves" in his administration conduct an intensive drive for peace.

Later he ribbed some of them in cabinet meetings that if he hadn't suspended bombing during that period he wouldn't have given Senator Fulbright and other liberals an excuse for criticizing his resumption of bombing.

NEW DEAL WITH CHINA?

Meanwhile the President has authorized his diplomats to take some radical new steps for better understanding in the Far East. He has instructed Secretary of State Rusk to sound out the Chinese regarding a foreign minister - level conference on the subject of improving relations between the two countries and resuming diplomatic relations if possible.

The United States is also ready to revise its long-time policy of barring Communist China from the United Nations.

This would break with everything the United States has stood for in the Far East since Chiang Kai-Shek took refuse on Formosa during the Truman administration, leaving the Chinese Communists to dominate the most populous country in the world.

As a senator, Lyndon Johnson led the Democratic party in giving President Eisenhower complete freedom to declare war in the Formosan Straits in order to support not only Nationalist China but Generalissimo Chiang's risky right to place his troops within three and twelve miles of the Chinese mainland on the islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

However, the Lyndon Johnson who is now President has come to realize what Lyndon Johnson as a senator did not realize -- namely that you can't ignore a nation of 700,000,000 people, especially when it has nuclear weapons, and that the best way to deal with a nation of such size and potential strength is to talk to it, not ignore it.

It's probable that the Chinese will not respond immediately to Dean Rusk's overtures. It's too profitable propagandawise for them to have the United States as a whipping boy. Teaching Chinese children to say "hate Imperialist America" helps to unify the Chinese people.

Nevertheless the President has learned the hard way that the key to peace in Southeast Asia is Red China. He knows he will never get North Viet Nam to sit down at the conference table as long as the Chinese are opposed.

His experts also argue that the old leaders of Red China will soon be replaced. Mao Tse-Tung is suffering from Parkinson's disease and cannot be propped up indefinitely. His contemporaries are all in their seventies. A new generation is about to take over, comparable to the post - Stalin Khrushchev leaders in Russia. The Johnson plan is to make overtures now which may bear fruit later.

Buccaneers were not the same as pirates. They had more in common with the so-called privateers. Buccaneers were English, French and Dutch sea adventurers who haunted the Caribbean and the Pacific seaboards of South America during the second-half of the 17th century. They were hostile to the Spanish, who then regarded the seas as their monopoly. The word is derived from the French boucan, a grill for smoking dried meat, for use in ships at sea.

Flood Connects On Grand Slammer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City Athletics each had a big inning Wednesday night that provided them with victory.

The Cardinals exploded for seven runs in the seventh innings, four of them on Curt Flood's grand slam homer, to break open a 2-1 game and ship the Chicago Cubs, 9-1.

Kansas City scored all its runs in the sixth to defeat Washington 3-1. Ed Charles hit his first home run of the season in the rally.

Flood homered off Bill Faul, who came on in relief of Ted Abernathy after Abernathy gave up a two-run pinch single by Bob Skinner and yielded another run on a wild pitch.

Cardinal starter Nelson Briles gave up a homer to Adolfo Phillips on the first pitch of the game, but held the Cubs off through the seventh inning, when he departed for a pinch-hitter. The victory was Briles' first against two losses. He struck out nine.

Charles hit his homer leading off Kansas City's big sixth inning. Joe Nossek followed with a single and Fred Talbot was safe on an error. Wayne Causey brought in one run with a sacrifice fly and Ken Harrelson brought in another with a double.

The Senators got only three hits, although the Athletics employed five pitchers.

The only Senator run came off Talbot in the fourth when Bob Saverine's bunt went for a single Don Lock walked and Bob Chance hit a sacrifice fly after an infield out

Kansas City has an open date today.

Chicago lefthander Dick Ellsworth 1-5 will pitch tonight against St. Louis righthander Bob Gibson 4-5.

In ancient times lightning was regarded as the weapon of the gods. Areas struck by lightning were hedged off as sacred precincts and persons killed by lightning were not accorded the usual funeral rites but were buried on the spot where they were struck. In some of the more primitive parts of Africa today fires started by lightning are not extinguished, nor is aid given to a person struck down.

Shot Put Champion Heads Team

COLUMBIA, MO.,-- Big Eight conference shot put champion Gene Crews will head a six-man Missouri delegation into the Central Collegiate Conference championships this weekend at Notre Dame.

Crews, who won five of six possible Big Eight shot put titles in both indoor and outdoor competition, owns the best put in conference history, 61-7. He set the C.C.C. mark last year with a 58-1 1/4 toss.

Accompanying the Tiger co-captain on the journey to South Bend will be hurdler Garet von Netzer, high jumper Steve Herndon, pole-vaulter Charlie Beck, hammer thrower Terry Thompson and miler Charlie Conrad. Von Netzer, Herndon and Beck all finished second in their specialties to help the Tigers to a mildly surprising tie for fifth in the Big Eight outdoor meet.

Von Netzer, third in the Central Collegiate high hurdles last year, will be seeking another rugged field in the highs Saturday. Heading the opposition will be defending champion Gene Washington, Michigan State football halfback, who led the Spartans to a new NCAA 480 yard shuttle relay record at the Drake Relays.

Thompson, only a sophomore, ran a scorching 1:48.6 in the conference 880 championships but it was good only for a fourth-place finish. Oklahoma State's John Perry and Jim Metcalf ran the two fastest half-miles in the world this season in the same race.

Conrad failed to score in the conference outdoor test but the Park Hill senior owns a 1:51 for the 880 and 4:08.4 for the mile, which should rank him as a solid threat at Notre Dame.

Oldest Trees?

The bristlecone pines in California's Inyo National Forest are regarded as the world's oldest living things. These twisted trees have been found to be some 4,500 years old, thus antedating the giant sequoias growing elsewhere in California.

Good Luck Bulldogs

Sikeston's high school baseball team left for St. Louis this morning and will see the St. Louis Cardinals-Chicago Cub game tonight.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. the Bulldogs will meet the Huskies from St. Louis Ritenour High School at Heine Meine field in Lemay in a semi-final game of the Missouri State High School Activities Association baseball tournament.

The Bulldogs have a young team with very few starting veterans off last year's team.

There are various ingredients a high school team needs to become the STATE BASEBALL CHAMPION and coach Al Lane of the Bulldogs is hoping his Dogs have the right proportions.

The team's hopes rest on the strong arm of Gary Stallings and some excellent reliefing from Dan Kern and Rudy Manley along with a fine hitting attack which Coach Lane received in the regional game against Cape Central.

Senior second baseman Richard Montgomery is leading the team in hitting with a .390 average, but he has plenty of help from some underclassmen such as Wayne Limbaugh, Greg Bailey, and Rudy Manley to mention only a few.

If the Bulldogs' hitting is up to par, the Dogs have a great chance of knocking off the Huskies and advancing to the Finals which will be played Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. at Heine Meine field.

The liver is the largest gland in the human body, weighing approximately three-and-one-third pounds and representing about one-fiftieth of the total body weight. It has many different functions but its most important is that of a filter and a clearing station which purifies the blood. Only vertebrate animals possess a liver.

St. Louis U. Ranked Fourth In Nation

Missouri Valley champion St. Louis, ranked no. 4 in the nation, placed four men on the all-conference team chosen by the Valley coaches, led by unbeaten John Marcum, who pitched a no-hit game in the league title playoff.

The other St. Louis players on the team were third baseman Gerry Boehmer, hitting .344, outfielder Carl Gentile .344 and pitcher John Davasko with a 6-0 record.

Cincinnati placed second baseman Jerry Storm, .278 and catcher John Meyer .384. Tulsa placed two outstanding sophomores, shortstop Mike Marrs at .400 and outfielder Mike Eppler .367. Eppler also stole 23 bases.

Others on the All-Valley team Drake first baseman Bruce McDonald .333 and Wichita outfielder Tom Diana .339.

Marcum, Gentile and Storm are repeaters from the 1965 All-Valley team.

Marcum had a 1.86 earned run average at the NCAA College World Series last year and struck out 21 men in 18 1-3 innings. St. Louis, 27-4 meets Oklahoma State, 16-9, the Big Eight champ, in a Fifth District playoff June 2-3 at Stillwater, Okla., the winner going to the NCAA at Omaha June 13-17. St. Louis tied for third in the 1965 NCAA.

The barracuda, a pike-like predatory fish ranging in length from three to 10 feet, sometimes herds schools of smaller fish into shallow water, thus preventing their escape until he is hungry enough to feed on them. Smaller, slender types of barracuda are found off the California coast and are considered good eating.

Mizzou Ends Season With 13-12 Record

COLUMBIA, MP., -- Sophomore Rudy Stroupe hit .350 this spring to lead a Missouri baseball team that was bugged by a familiar malady -- senioritis.

Verteran Tiger players just didn't come through in '66, as Coach John (Hi) Simmons' athletes toppled off the Big Eight pedestal after a four-year reign. Five lettermen hit for less than last year's output--while pitchers Orv Hollrah and Terry L'Ange, who combined for an 8-2 record last year,

Mizzou tied for fourth in the league at 9-9, and was 13-12 for the season. Those 12 losses were the most ever dealt to a Simmons-coached team in 27 campaigns, except for the 1959 season when 13 victories were forfeited.

Stroupe, shortstop from Columbia, and Jim Loving -- another rookie who became a late-season regular -- were the best swingers for M.U. at .350 and .346. Top average among the veterans belonged to Ray Thorpe, the 5-7 speedster, at .270.

Second-baseman Bob Robben hit only .257 and drove in 12 runs, enough to win R.B.I. honors -- but a considerable dip from 1965 when he batted .440 and knocked in 25 runs.

Missouri batted .254 as a team.

First book printed in the English language was the translation of the book about Troy by William Saxton.

F.B.I. Admits Eavesdropping

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON AP -- The Justice Department has sent an unprecedented memorandum to the Supreme Court admitting that Federal Bureau of Investigation agents secretly eavesdropped on conversations between a lawyer and his client -- a former associate of Bobby Baker.

The client, Washington public relations man Fred B. Black Jr., later was convicted of income tax evasion. But in the memorandum, Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall said Black should be given a court hearing.

Marshall's memorandum to the high court, sent Tuesday, indicated that the FBI apparently acted on its own when it "installed a listening device" in Black's hotel suite in Washington three years ago.

The memorandum said that neither the Justice Department attorneys who prosecuted Black nor "any other attorney of the Department of Justice" -- including Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach -- knew about the electronic snooping.

Black now is fighting his 1964 tax conviction and has asked the Supreme Court for the second time to review his conviction. The court denied Black's first request for review May 2.

He and Baker, former Senate Democratic secretary who has been indicted on a number of federal charges, were associated in a Washington vending machine business.

In his memorandum, Marshall said the bugging, which took place between February and April 1963, "was unrelated to the tax evasion case."

But he added: "The listening device was in operation from approximately two months before until approximately one month after the evidence was presented to the grand jury and the indictment was returned.

"During that time the monitoring agents overheard, among other conversations, exchanges between petitioner and the attorney who was then representing him in connection with the tax evasion charges on which he has been convicted."

Marshall said although the Justice Department is convinced "the monitoring of conversations had no effect upon his conviction or the fairness of his trial, we have no doubt that in the circumstances Black is entitled to a judicial determination."

Marshall emphasized the entire case against Black was based on investigation by the IRS and not the FBI, but added that Black should be allowed to raise the question in U. S. District Court whether any other conversations overheard by the agents "furnished any leads or evidence in his case."

Possibly indicating FBI practice in reporting to its parent Justice Department, Marshall said while the justice prosecutor had access to FBI reports summarizing the bugged information, "these reports did not disclose the manner in which the information had been obtained or that such information reflected discussions between petitioner and counsel."

A Justice Department spokesman said since last July -- at the explicit order of President Johnson -- electronic snooping has been confined to national security cases and may be conducted only with the attorney general's approval.

Controversial Amendments Before House Today

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON AP - The House wades into a stack of controversial amendments today as it moves toward expected passage of a bill to raise the federal minimum wage and broaden its coverage.

Supporters face a strenuous task in retaining the bill's full proposed new coverage of 7.2 million workers, including farm workers and employes of hotels, hospitals and restaurants.

They should have less difficulty in raising the present $1.25 an hour wage to $1.60, but a major effort is being planned to delay the effective date of the top rate from 1968, as proposed in the bill to 1970.

During four hours of debate Tuesday there was widespread agreement that wages of the nation's lowest paid workers should be raised -- at least to the $3,000-a-year regarded as the level of poverty in other federal programs. A wage of $1.60 would produce an annual income of $3,200.

It was not unanimous. Rep. Glenn Andrews, R-Ala., said the bill would create more poverty by forcing farms and small businesses to shut down because they can't pay higher wages.

There was evidence of bipartisan support for the main outlines of the measure, however, Rep. Alphonzo Bell, R-Calif., called for its passage intact, and Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Calif., said he wanted only one minor amendment. Both are members of the Education and Labor Committee which wrote the bill.

The proposal to delay the effective date of the $1.60 wage to 1970 is to be made by Rep. Thomas G. Morris, D-N.M. The bill provides for an increase to $1.40 next Feb. 1, and a stepup to $1.60 a year later.

Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., floor manager of the bill, is counting on the support of President Johnson to help defeat the Morris amendment. Johnson, in a talk to editors of labor publications Monday, endorsed the bill for the first time. He asked Congress for changes in the minimum wage law, but made no specific recommendations.

Other amendments that appear to have wide support would eliminate farm workers from coverage, exempt cannery workers from overtime, limit the size of retail establishments that would be covered, provide lower wages for teen-agers, and drop waiters and other tipped employes from the bill.

Large Debt Could Bring on Squeeze

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON AP - A $330-billion debt ceiling, although the highest ever, could force the Treasury Department into a financial squeeze during the next fiscal year if all its chips don't fall into line.

That is the belief today of some officials who feel the ceiling voted Tuesday by the House Ways and Means Committee eliminated most of the built-in headroom they allowed for contingencies.

The department requested a $332-billion temporary debt ceiling for fiscal 1967 which begins July 1, up from the present temporary limit of $328 billion.

The $332-billion figure would give the Treasury about $3 billion headroom. Officials feel this would permit more efficient management of the debt if the added authorization was not needed for contingencies.

The Treasury nearly bumped the ceiling in the late 1950s and was forced to stretch out payments of some of the government's bills to remain within the limit.

The lower ceiling, it was reported, also might force the government to sell some of its financial assets prematurely instead of waiting for an ideal time in the money market.

The House committee's selection of the lower figure apparently was based on a report by the staff of the Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue that the Treasury had forecast too large a budget deficit.

Treasury officials feel the joint committee's estimates are too optimistic.

The Treasury Department apparently plans to further move until the House acts on the debt ceiling-probably week after next. But it could request the Senate Finance Committee to stick with the original request of $332 billion.

If the Senate goes along with the higher limit, the outcome could be a splitting of the difference at $331 billion, a figure some Treasury officials say wouldn't be too hard to live with.

Nobody even discusses the possibility that Congress might refuse to act on a temporary ceiling and permit the limit to drop to its permanent level of $285 billion.

Congress always has gone along with an increase, although it has sometimes chopped the amount. It did so last year in approving the $328 billion figure, $1 billion short of the administration's request.

This year's request was based on a budget deficit of $3.9 billion for the fiscal year which ends June 30. Under a formula developed by former Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, this deficit is added to the existing temporary ceiling to reach the new figure.

But the Senate-House committee predicted a deficit under some circumstances might drop below $3.5 billion, but they can't foresee anything as low as the committee's figure.

Civil Rights Hearings To Be Completed

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON AP - A House Judiciary subcommittee hopes to complete its hearings on the administration's civil rights bill today, but the legislation may have a cloudy future.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who has been able to provide crucial Republican votes in past civil rights battles, suggested Tuesday that the 1966 measure might well be "put on the hook until next year."

Dirksen told a news conference this would give Congress more time to study the constitutionality of the measure's open housing provision and its section designed to prevent discrimination in the selection of state and federal juries.

The Illinois Republican stood firm on the position he previously had taken that the proposed ban on racial or religious discrimination in the sale or rental of housing is "absolutely unconstitutional."

Republican leaders in the House, however, have indicated they do not share Dirksen's views.

While they have not committed themselves, subcommittee members appear to favor keeping the house provision in the bill -- possibly with some exemptions.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., is expected to start its closed drafting sessions after Congress returns from the Memorial Day recess.

Senate hearings on the bill are scheduled to start June 2.

Organizers of next week's White House conference on civil rights, in a report issued Tuesday, called for immediate and long-range state and federal action to bring the Negro into equal status in housing, education, economic and job security, and the administration of justice.

The report, described as a blueprint for sweeping action at all levels to improve the Negro's lot, urge "an absolutely open, racially unrestricted market in which housing is affirmatively merchandised to families and persons of all racial groups."

It called for an end to de facto segregation in public schools and more action by private employers, unions, and government to provide Negroes with jobs.

Johnson Given Notice To Provide More Answers

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON AP - Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen has given President Johnson firm notice that Congress wants more answers to what's happening in Viet Nam.

After hobbling into the Senate on crutches Tuesday -- his first appearance there since he broke a thigh bone in a fall May 10 Dirksen told a news conference he had discussed Viet Nam with the President when Johnson visited him at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

The Illinois Republican said during "a reasonably lengthy talk" with Johnson he proposed a bipartisan White House briefing for congressional leaders. The President promised to take the idea under advisement, Dirksen reported.

Dirksen's prodding -- coming as it does from an opposition party senator who has backed the administration's Southeast Asia action - may well produce a briefing at which Johnson would answer some plaguing questions about political stability and military progress in South Viet Nam.

At the White House deputy press secretary Robert H. Fleming said he had no comment on Dirksen's proposal.

But the mere fact that the GOP leader disclosed he had suggested it personally to Johnson indicates Dirksen believes congressional leaders need to have more background information to cope with the deterioration in popular support of the war effort.

Johnson has not met with the congressional leaders for several months.

In other developments Tuesday:

Secretary of State Dean Rusk reaffirmed the U.S. desire to negotiate peace in Viet Nam and said this country shall continue its "far-reaching, persistent efforts to bring the other side to the peace table."

United Nations Secretary-Genera U Thant said military operations in Viet Nam should be scaled down in an attempt to initiate peace discussions among the major powers including Red China. The war in South Viet Nam, he said, can no longer be described as a "fight for democracy."

While he avoided any personal assessment of the situation in Viet Nam at the news conference, Dirksen said that opinion polls indicated a downward shift in public support for Johnson's policies there.

He said he has the feeling the majority of the people are confused and frustrated by the seeming instability of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government. Dirksen added that they need more information about the situation in Saigon.

Grant Pay Raises To Employees in Effort to Halt Personnel Turnover

In an effort to halt a serious rate of employee turnover, the Missouri State Highway Commission has authorized pay increases for most Department employees beginning with the May paychecks.

The Commission authorized the increases on recommendation of Chief Engineer M. J. Snider, who said a heavy loss of employees is having an adverse effect on the Department's ability to carry on the state road program.

Pay increases range from a maximum of five per cent down to less than one per cent, depending on the relation of the employees' present salary to the salary range permitted for their particular job classification.

Snider said employees receiving the full five per cent raise generally are those in the lower paid jobs, while employees in higher paying positions are receiving the lesser percentages of increase.

The pay raises are being received by all but about 150 of the 6,098 salaried personnel on the Department's payroll as of May 1. Those not receiving a raise are top management people whose salaries are limited by statute and some employees who are at the top of the salary range for their job classification.

Snider reported that latest separation records show that employee turnover in the Department now is running about 17 per cent a year.

Particularly harmful, he said, is that many of the employees leaving the Department for better paying jobs elsewhere are experienced people with several years of service.

"The turnover rate is serious in all job classifications in the Department -- professional, technical, office and field," Snider explained. "Geographically, the most critical employee shortages exist in the metropolitan areas of St. Louis and Kansas City, where we are understaffed. But the turnover is also serious in the rest of the state."

The chief engineer said competition for employees in all fields has intensified greatly in the last few months, making it difficult for the Department to retain present employees and attract qualified new people.

One example of the competition, Snider said, is the fact that the Department was able to hire only one civil engineering graduate from college campuses this Spring, despite interviewing and extending job offers to 45 prospects.

On-campus recruiting efforts were carried on at the University of Missouri in Columbia and Rolla, St. Louis University, Washington University, the University of Arkansas, the University of Kansas and Kansas State University.

In previous years the Department usually has had job acceptances by 30 to 35 per cent of the civil engineering graduates to whom offers were extended, Snider reported.

The pay increases will add $129,425 a month to the Department's payroll, including $14,064 to the administrative payroll and $115,361 to the road fund payroll.

Snider emphasized that the payroll of the Department, with the salary increases, will be within the appropriations made by the General Assembly.

The chief engineer said the pay increases are narrowing the gap between the lower and higher paid job classifications to a level inconsistent with normally accepted business practices. But he said that because of the emergency situation existing, it was necessary the action be taken in an effort to make the Department more competitive in the job market so as to keep the state's road program moving with maximum efficiency.

The chief engineer reported that in an action entirely separate from the granting of pay raises, the Commission revised upward the maximum possible to be paid for almost all jobs in the Department. The revisions were ten per cent, except where it was necessary to reduce this percentage due to legislative salary restrictions.

Those revisions were made, Snider said, to allow many of the pay increases which now are being granted, as well as to give most employees an opportunity to earn merit increases in the future.

Dr. Robert Nash

Robert Nash Is New Doctor Here

Dr. Robert S. Nash, who has been associated with Dr. F. L. Sisson since April, is a native of Miami, Fla.

Nash attended New York University and the University of Miami, graduating with a bachelor of science degree, majoring in biology. He graduated from Logan Chiropractic College in St. Louis, and is licensed to practice in Missouri.

Dr. Nash served four years as flight director on the ship USS Midway, and has made two trips around the world.

He has been an active participant as a baritone in the glee club, the Little Theater in Miami, and also played drums and a guitar professionally.

His wife, Gloria, and three children, Glenn, 13, Gary 10, and Laurie Ann 6, will join him in the middle of June.

Dr. and Mrs. Sisson, who have been residents of Sikeston for the past 32 years will leave Friday for Phoenix, Ariz., to make their new home. He and his wife, Leda May, formerly of Morley, have a daughter and son-in-law and two grandchildren in Phoenix, and a son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe William Sisson, in Memphis.

Dr. Sisson had a perfect attendance in Rotary for 20 years and was charter president. He was Sikeston's First Man of Year in 1952-53, and active in Boy Scout work and the Baptist church. Their new address will be 1911 W. Earll Drive, Phoenix. He will enter public relations work there for the time being.

Not Suicidal

Studies made in Europe and the United States at widely different periods of time all show that virtually no children below the age of 15 commit suicide, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Toughness Provides Stability In Viet Nam

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON AP - The one hope for stability in South Viet Nam at this time seems to be iron - fisted toughness, not democracy, and it may long remain that way.

The American ideal of the good society in Viet Nam would be a democratic one. But events over the years -- particularly recent events -- throw doubt on the readiness of the Vietnamese for democracy. They never had it.

One government after another was swept out by plots, ambitions, and protests, especially by Buddhists leaders, until the present group of generals took over under Premier Nguyen CAO Ky.

He promisd elections and a constitutional government within a year. This didn't satisfy the Buddhist leaders. In trying to throw him out, they revolted at Da Nang.

This revolt, judging from what happened, was poorly planned and badly organized. Although Buddhists make up 80 per cent of the population, in the showdown they lacked mass support. Ky used the army to crush the uprising.

Unrest continues in the northern city of Hue and, to some extent, among Buddhists in the capital of Saigon. But Ky, according to reports from Saigon, is confident he can squelch this kind of opposition.

Richard Critchfield of the Washington Evening Star, writing out of Viet Nam, has present a disgusting picture of the Da Nang Buddhists who wanted a hand, and no doubt wounded and killed and paraded them before the press as victims of government repression."

Yet, these are the same men who have been demanding constitutional government. Their performance was irresponsible and cruel. It is still not clear whether they are in league with the North Vietnamese Communists.

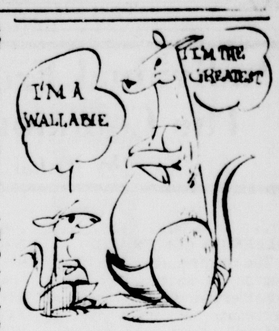
If Ky goes through with his plans for a democratic government, the Buddhist leaders will want a large and no doubt dominant role in it. But it hardly seems possible after the disclosures at Da Nang that they want a democratic government or any kind of government -- but a Buddhist dictatorship.

Therefore, it should not be surprising if Ky and the generals refuse to let the elections occur within a year or for some time afterward because the Buddhist leaders project a vision not of order but of anarchy.

One thing is sure: the U.S. war against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese Communists cannot continue if South Viet Nam disintegrates much further into the kind of brainless disorder the Buddhist leaders sought.

If there is a connection between the Buddhist leaders and the Communists it may begin to show up if Ky restores stability to South Viet Nam. So long as the Buddhists revolted, the Reds could hope for internal collapse.

That would have saved them a need for a total showdown with the United States. If there's no internal collapse, they will have to rely on war.



Kangaroos vary greatly in size. The smallest, called wallabies, may be no larger than a rabbit. The biggest, called the great kangaroo, may grow seven feet tall.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

The requirements of military secrecy in wartime brought a considerable development of personnel security screening, not only of the military and of Federal government employees but of private employees in war plants and, in particular, the new and super - secret atomic energy industry. As early as 1942 the War Department instituted a strenuous, but generally voluntary, program for the "discharge of subversives from private plants of importance to Army procurement." By the end of the war the security officer, with his investigations into individual backgrounds, beliefs, and associations, was a familiar figure. His dossiers and fingerprint files were beginning to accumulate, but his efforts were not yet systematized on the ground scale later adopted. Other protections against subversion were developed as war measures. Few have since been willing to defend one of them, the mass evacuation from the West Coast of persons of Japanese ancestry; yet the principle behind it was later to be embedded in the Internal Security Act. The war was not yet over when the discovery of large numbers of classified papers (few, apparently, of much real security significance) in the office of the small magazine Amerasia awoke some interest in Communist espionage and in the seemingly subversive citizens who might supply its agents, but this was of no great popular concern at the time.

The onset of the cold war coincided, however, with two developments which were enormously to expand the popular demand for better defenses against sedition. One was the appearance of the staggering problem of the atomic bomb, the intense debates over a proper policy, and the tremendous emphasis placed upon "keeping the secret from the Russians." The other was the revelation by Igor Gouzenko, the defecting Soviet code clerk, of the existence of extensive Soviet espionage networks in Canada and the United States, largely staffed from natives recruited from the native Communist parties and study cells. With the conviction of the English nuclear physicist, Alan May, these nets were shown to have reached even to the periphery, at least, of the greatest and most jealously-guarded of all national secrets.

OP ART -- EXPERIMENTING with her original design, the Sikeston Art League emblem, Harriet Jones, superviser of Sikeston Public Schools art department and Art League board member, came up with a new design in popular Op art style. Going into a third annual exhibit, the league felt it had represented every technique but this seems to be a new one.

The Holiday Art Exhibit opens Saturday at 10 a.m. and remains open until 10 p.m. Sunday, the exhibit will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

a seasonal supper.

Fruited Canadian-Style Bacon

- 8 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut ½-inch thick
- 8 slices pineapple
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 cup pineapple juice
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons cold water

Brown bacon slowly on both sides in frying-pan. Remove bacon. Brown slices of pineapple slightly in drippings. Simmer raisins, pineapple juice and water for 10 minutes. Thicken with a mixture of cornstarch, salt and 2 tablespoons cold water, stirring until the cornstarch is cooked. Return bacon to pan. Pour sauce over the bacon and pineapple and simmer slowly, 15 minutes. 4 servings.

Canadian-style bacon is a tender cut that is cured and smoked. Tasting like ham, it needs only short broiling or pan-broiling to heat and brown for this recipe, advises meat authority Reba Staggs.

A quick-fix pineapple-raisin sauce goes well with this meat which provides a delightful entree with skillet-candied or mashed sweet potatoes, a green salad and a fruit shortcake for

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I was touched by the letter from "Over-Endowed." Several years ago I had her measurements -- and her problems. I could write a book about the cruelty I suffered from members of both sexes.

I tried desperately to achieve recognition for something besides my figure, but it was hopeless. My "assets," which so many girls envied (and so many boys lusted after), brought me nothing but trouble.

Thank God those wretched days are over. What a relief that my once spectacular figure has gone the way of too much flesh. Now I have friends who recognize that I have a bright mind, and a nice philosophy.

Believe me, Ann, it's a lonely world for the Too Beautiful. --ONE WHO WAS

Dear One: It's a lonely world for the dogs, too -- probably lonelier.

Can it be that you really developed your bright mind and your nice philosophy when you could no longer count on the external trappings? This sometimes happens and I'll bet it happened to you, Doll.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a mother and two sisters who ran my life. They pushed me into a loveless marriage with a man who was too old for me. After 10 years of misery I somehow found the courage to take a stand against my family and get a divorce. The only good thing that came out of that marriage was a wonderful son.

Two years after my divorce I married a marvelous man and we moved to another state. He has been a devoted husband and father and I now know the meaning of real contentment.

I stayed away from my family for seven years. Their letters were filled with hostility and resentment. Every time I got a letter from home I'd also get an eye-piercing headache.

A few months ago I decided to go home and see if I couldn't make peace with my family. I wasn't in the house 15 minutes when my mother and sisters suggested that I take the boy to see his father. In the 10 years that has passed the man had not tried, even once, to contact his son. Neither had he offered one penny toward the boy's support. Yet my family kept saying, "But he IS the boy's father . ."

I refused to budge and a big fight followed. They said I was the meanest person who ever lived and crazy besides. What do you think about this? -- CINDERELLA

Dear Cinderella: The decision to see or not to see your ex-husband was yours to make. The family should not have even mentioned his name. It is obvious that they learned nothing in those long seven years. The best thing that exists between you and your relatives is distance. Keep it that way.

Confidential to SICK OF SCHOOL AND WASTING MY TIME: I know all about the dropouts who made it big--the Wright Brothers, Picasso, Marconi, Thomas Edison and Mark Twain, to name a few--but they didn't bum money off their dads and go riding around on motorcycles. They managed to educated themselves. Stay in school and get your diploma or you'll regret it.

Do you feel ill at ease . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booket, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

matter of fact

The European corn borer is one of the most devastating insect pests of American agriculture on record. It first started damaging corn in New England, in 1916-17, where the manufacture of brooms from broomcorn imported from Europe was a principal industry. The corn borer next spread to the Midwest, America's "corn belt." In 1949 alone this pest caused the loss of 315 million bushels of corn.

Theocratic Party Convention

CHAFFEE-- The seventh annual National Convention of the Theocratic Party in a three day session here, in connection with the annual state of Missouri convention of the Church of God, gave priority to the Viet Nam problem of America.

The party is fully prepared, with extra strengths of religion, to cope with present developments there, to offer immediate assistance to the administration.

The national chairman of the party, Bishop Homer A. Tomlison, declined to say what formula or counsel the Theocratic Party was ready to offer, saying that it should be reserved for the administration to consider the suggestions privately.

The party passed a resolution delegating Bishop W.R. Rogers, Fulton, state overseer of the Church of God, and the Theocratic Party's candidate for the U.S. President in the 1968 campaign to represent the party in America, at the first national convention during the seven-day World Assembly of the Church of God which is to convene in Jerusalem, Jordan, Oct. 6-12.

Bishop Homer Tomlison, opened the convention of the party, with Jack Hart of Jackson, a county committeeman, chosen as permanent chairman. A resolution was approved giving Bishop W.R. "Bill" Rogers, the bid for the U.S. Presidency in the 1968 election.

The party, not only will be on the national ballot in 1968, but will try to place state and local candidates on various state ballots in 1966. The final tabulation of votes in the 1964 presidential tabulation of votes, claimed by Bishop Tomlison, were 3,000,000 votes.

The opening bids for the construction of a factory addition to the Canvas Products Company, scheduled to be opened today, were postponed until June 3, at 2 p.m. at the city hall. The announcement was made by Fielding Potashnick, president of the Sikeston Development Company.

The postponement was due to the lack of mechanical details having been omitted in the original proposals.

Turncoat Crosses Over To Hong Kong

By FORREST EDWARDS

HONG KONG AP -- Korean War turncoat Clarence Adams arrived in Hong Kong today, leaving only two of 21 self-exiled former American prisoners of war in Communist China.

Adams, from Memphis, Tenn., crossed the Lowu border bridge 23 miles north of the city with his Chinese wife and their children, Louis, 3, and Della, 4.

Nicholas Platt, a U. S. consulate official met them at the border and took them to an undisclosed hotel.

The consulate had been expecting Adams since the Chinese notified the Hong Kong Red Cross he would cross the border May 9. But Adams told newsmen he had not planned to leave China until this week.

"I think maybe there was a mistake in the date," he said.

The last was Morris Wills of Fort Ann, N.Y., who crossed last Oct. 19.

Adams said he did not know whether Howard Adams and Veneris were planning to leave China.

"I have been working at the foreign language press," he said. "They are studying at Peking University, and I've had very little contact with them for many months."

Adams said he and his family would fly to the United States "just as soon as our travel documents are ready and my mother sends us the travel money which she wrote she would send as soon as we reached Hong Kong."

A U. S. consulate spokesman said issuance of travel documents for the family could take from one to three weeks.

While Adams talked to Platt, Mrs. Adams, the former Liu Lin-fang, told newsmen in Chinese they had decided to leave China because Adams wanted to see his mother, Mrs. Gladys Peoples of Memphis.

"He has not seen his mother since before he went to war 16 years ago," Mrs. Adams said.

New Column To Be In Saturdays Paper

Jenkin Lloyd Jones, dynamic, globe - trotting editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, will share AN EDITOR'S OUTLOOK with readers each Saturday as a regular weekend columnist for the Daily Standard.

Beginning in Saturdays issue, Jones' column promises to examine and clarify a cross section of issues, problems and events that cross the desk of a busy editor during the course of a newsmaking day in his life.

Jones declares that partisan politics per se are OUT as far as his column is concerned. So is anger, just for the sake of creating controversy. "I think we overdo our viewing with alarm," Jones says. "The 'professional angry man' is soon reduced to studiously misinterpreting the motives of others, which leads to cynicism and eventual dullness. If you go through life with your whistle cord tied down, people will find you merely noisy and eventually you'll run out of steam!"

Jones doesn't intend to run out of steam. "There are a lot of good things going on in the world and I'm going to try to find a lot of things that I think are worth cheering over."

This doesn't mean that Jones won't nurture a good strong "beef" once in awhile. "I'll call 'em as I see 'em", he declares. "An independent press continues to be our greatest asset in protecting all the other freedoms so important to the future of mankind. Without an independent press leading the way for a free and informed people, our democratic principles could not long survive."

When Jones DOES take up a cause, the results are often far flung. A few months ago he received wide acclaim for his keynote speech, entitled "America's Moral Crisis," at the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. A reprint of this speech in the Reader's Digest is said to have received more requests

Memorial Day Story On Memorial Gifts

In the sorrow that follows the loss of a loved one close to us, a relative or friend, to cancer, there is the wish to honor the departed.

At times like these, many find solace in dedicating a memorial gift to the American Cancer Society. This contribution provides a way to perpetuate the memory of a life that has been lost. It offers a way to prevent the further suffering of others.

Memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society help in many ways; they support cancer research in hospitals, laboratories, and clinics. They provide fellowships for doctors and scientists. They help train manpower needed to carry out future research. They also make possible the service programs which provide direct and specific help for those now stricken with cancer.

Because Memorial Day each year draws our attention to those who have died, it seems appropriate at this time to remember them with memorial gifts. Such a contribution, large or small, brings the moment of final victory closer.

The Scott County Unit of the American Cancer Society will be pleased to accept memorial gifts. They may be sent to Billie Burch - P.O. Box 809-Sikeston, Missouri.

A dignified card will be sent to the family of the deceased.

Two Counties Purchase Abandoned Bridge

Butler County and Stoddard County have jointly purchased a bridge across the St. Francis River which was abandoned by the Frisco Railroad, and it is planned to have the bridge in use this year.

Loren White, Presiding Judge of the Butler County Court said the bridge, at a location commonly known as Hodge's Ferry, near Rombauer, was purchased for a price of $500, $250 for each county. Judge White added that he believed the bridge, when ready for use, would open a new trade route into Poplar Bluff.

Judge White said that the bridge will be opened this year and traffic will drive across the levee to Foothill Road and then travel to Rombauer to Route Z.

The bridge will have to be floored and side rails will have to be consturcted before being used by vehicles.

Judge White stated that future plans call for opening a route on the abandoned right-of-way to Rombauer. He added that six additional bridges had been purchased along the abandoned right-of-way and the cost to Butler County was $750. An additional $250 was donated for the purchase of the birdges.

He said that six persons had been instrumental in negotiations for the purchase of the bridges. They are Bill Clarkson, Clyde Crawford, Lyman Mays, Lewis Brown, Dale Bond and Loyce Daniels.

Stoddard County is expected to open the other end of the road from the bridge to complete the new route.

Montgomery-Sells Trial Reaching High Pitch, Witness Sobs

Steps Retraced Leading Up To Fatal Accident

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, questioned her yesterday about events of the night Miss Glenda Wiles, 24, was killed in an automobile wreck at 1:45 a.m. Oct. 14, 1959.

She testified about a visit to the King's Club with Joel A. Montgomery, Miss Bobbie L. Vance and three other men and about later stops at the Petroleum Club and the Skyway at the Peabody.

Q. -- Did you know Mr. Montgomery before that night?

A. -- I had met him several times before but I had never been out with him.

Q. -- Did you know he was married?

A. -- No, I did not.

Mrs. Sells said she had one drink at the King's Club early in the evening and that Mr. Montgomery ordered a second drink but that she gave it to a piano player to play a request for her.

She said at the Petroleum Club one drink was ordered for her but she did not drink it and the ice melted. She said a second drink, Scotch and water, was ordered and she drank about half of it before leaving for the Skyway, taking with her a third drink which had been ordered.

Mrs. Sells said she gave that drink to a friend of Mr. Montgomery's in the Skyway. She told of Mr. Montgomery, Miss Vance and herself going to a garage on Front Street and getting into Mr. Montgomery's car.

Q. -- Had you had much or little driving experience?

A. -- I had been driving for a year and a half or two years, but I didn't own a car and I didn't drive much.

Q. -- Did you ever drive a car like that before. . . equipped with power brakes and power steering?

A. -- No, sir. . . .

Mrs. Sells said the car ran out of gasoline on Front and that occupants of another car offered aid. She said the second car left before she started the Montgomery car again. Occupants of the second car testified Tuesday Mrs. Sells ran red lights at Front and Monroe, Main and Monroe, and Second and Monroe. They said they followed the Montgomery car.

Q. -- What was the condition of the traffic light when you reached it at Monroe and Front—

A. -- It was green. . . I made the turn.

Q. -- What was the condition of the light at Main and Monroe?

A. -- It was red. . . I stopped.

Mrs. Sells said she did not recall the condition of the lights on Monroe at Second and Third.

She then testified about the lights at Monroe and Fourth and at Monroe and Wellington, the wreck scene.

She said she agreed to a drunkometer test at the hospital but could not blow up the balloon, because of an injured lip. Mrs. Sells said when she awakened at the hospital the morning after the accident she was chained to the bed.

Mr. Schaeffer yesterday hammered at Police Inspector H. S. Bivens about police work in the case.

Q. -- Did you make a written report to the attorney general's office about your investigation?

A. -- If I did I don't remember.

Q. -- You mean as chief investigating officer of this whole shebang you made no written report?

A. -- No, that was not my responsibility. It was done by officers under me.

Later Inspector Bivens said he conferred with the attorney general's office. "I asked if Mr. Montgomery could be indicted on the charges on the facts I had. I was told the charges to place against Mrs. Sells and they said they didn't think any charges would be placed against Mr. Montgomery."

Reading from the transcript of Mrs. Sells' first trial in 1960, Mr. Schaeffer showed that Inspector Bivens did not testify then that Mrs. Sells told him she ran a red light or that Mr. Montgomery told her to.

Q. -- Did you anywhere in the former trial testify to any such statement?

A. -- I did not. . .

Q. -- Whom in the attorney general's office did you bring this (statement) to the attention of?

A. -- Mr. (Braxton) Gandy (former chief assistant in the office).

Mr. Montgomery's attorney Don G. Owens also questioned Inspector Bivens sharply.

The police officer said he tried to talk with Miss Vance at a hospital but because of her injuries he could not. He said police tried to contact her later but could not do so.

Q. -- You have never taken a statement from her?

A. -- No, sir. . . .

Q. -- As police officer in charge of the investigation can you state what precipitated . . . the indictment against Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, sir.

Q. -- Was it a surprise to you?

A. -- Yes, it was a surprise to me.

Inspector Bivens said he did not know an indictment was being sought against Mr. Montgomery until he was told the case was going before the Grand Jury in January, 1962. He said police had no knowledge after Mrs. Sells' first trial that Mr. Montgomery would be indicted.

A Truth

This is the truth. Yesterday a man and woman in Sikeston walked into one of the furniture stores and purchased $1,200 worth of furniture.

The man went back to the store this morning and asked them for his check back, saying, "me and my wife have separated."

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells

Mrs. Sells Takes Stand

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells broke down on the witness stand yesterday afternoon during cross-examination on why she was driving millionaire Joel Montgomery's car at the time of a fatal wreck Oct. 14, 1959.

Mrs. Sells was the first defense witness in the involuntary manslaughter trial of her and Mr. Montgomery, a former Memphian who is now a civic leader in Sikeston, Mo.

"Did he ever say why he wanted you to drive?" asked Asst. Atty. Gen. James Beasley.

Mrs. Sells hesitated a moment and replied, "I don't remember."

"Do you recall . . ." Mr. Beasley started another question, but Mrs. Sells broke into loud weeping and put her head down on the side of the stand.

The defense then asked for a short recess and Mrs. Sells was taken to the rest room. She resumed her testimony after about 20 minutes. The trial was recessed for the day at 6:15 p.m. about 30 minutes after Mrs. Sells returned.

Earlier, under questioning from defense attorneys, she denied Mr. Montgomery told her to run any red lights before the crash at Monroe and Wellington, where Miss Glenda Wiles, 24, was killed.

She also denied running any red lights that night and she said she was not intoxicated.

Police Insp. H. S. Bivens testified earlier yesterday that Mrs. Sells told him at a hospital after the wreck that she had run the red light at the time of the wreck and that Mr. Montgomery had told her to run it. She denied making the statement.

"As you approached Monroe and Fourth (the intersection just west of Monroe and Wellington) what happened?" asked defense attorney James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer.

"Just as we approached the light it changed to orange," Mrs. Sells said. "I started to stop. Mr. Montgomery said, "Go on through. You have plenty of time.' So I went on through."

She said the light was not red when she last saw it. Mrs. Sells, then 21, who was driving Mr. Montgomery's car in which he and Miss Bobbie Vance were passengers, said she speeded up to about 40 to 45 miles per hour in the block approaching Wellington. She said she and Miss Vance were talking as they neared the intersection.

"When we were about two cars lengths away from the light it turned orange," Mrs. Sells said. "I speeded up a little. I was going through it. Miss Vance said something. She may have screamed or something . . . she had some type of reaction."

Mrs. Sells said she did not see the car traveling south on Wellington in which Miss Wiles was a passenger and which was being driven by Miss Alice K. Gassaway. She said she may have seen the headlights.

On Tuesday, Miss Vance testified the Montgomery car came to a yellow light at Monroe and Fourth and Mr. Montgomery told Mrs. Sells to "run this one and run them all."

The state rested its case in the trial at 3 p.m. yesterday before Mrs. Sells' testimony.

Mrs. Sells said although she visited night spots with Miss Vance and Mr. Montgomery before the wreck she had only one drink and half of another.

Mr. Schaeffer and Don G. Owens, attorney for Mr. Montgomery, sharply attacked handling of the case by police and the attorney general's office.

Quizzed by Mr. Schaeffer, Inspector Bivens conceded he did not testify in Mrs. Sells' first trial in 1960 that she told him she ran a red light. However, he said he had reported Mrs. Sells' statement to Braxton Gandy, then chief assistant in the attorney general's office and to the Shelby County Grand Jury. Inspector Bivens said he did not question Miss Gassaway after the accident. He said she was too badly injured to give a statement immediately.

There were 292,278 aliens admitted into this country last year, according to the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Turncoat Crosses Over To Hong Kong

By FORREST EDWARDS

HONG KONG AP -- Korean War turncoat Clarence Adams arrived in Hong Kong today, leaving only two of 21 self-exiled former American prisoners of war in Communist China.

Adams, from Memphis, Tenn., crossed the Lowu border bridge 23 miles north of the city with his Chinese wife and their children, Louis, 3, and Della, 4.

Nicholas Platt, a U. S. consulate official met them at the border and took them to an undisclosed hotel.

The consulate had been expecting Adams since the Chinese notified the Hong Kong Red Cross he would cross the border May 9. But Adams told newsmen he had not planned to leave China until this week.

"I think maybe there was a mistake in the date," he said.

The turncoats still in China are Howard Adams, no relation to Clarence, of Corsicana, Tex., and James Veneris of Hawthorne, Calif. One of the former war prisoners who chose to remain with their captors died in China, two left via Europe and 15 others preceded Adams across the Hong Kong border. The last was Morris Wills of Fort Ann, N.Y., who crossed last Oct. 19.

Adams said he did not know whether Howard Adams and Veneris were planning to leave China.

"I have been working at the foreign language press," he said. "They are studying at Peking University, and I've had very little contact with them for many months."

Adams said he and his family would fly to the United States "just as soon as our travel documents are ready and my mother sends us the travel money which she wrote she would send as soon as we reached Hong Kong."

A U. S. consulate spokesman said issuance of travel documents for the family could take from one to three weeks.

While Adams talked to Platt, Mrs. Adams, the former Liu Lin-fang, told newsmen in Chinese they had decided to leave China because Adams wanted to see his mother, Mrs. Gladys Peoples of Memphis.

"He has not seen his mother since before he went to war 16 years ago," Mrs. Adams said.

New Column To Be In Saturdays Paper

Jenkin Lloyd Jones, dynamic, globe - trotting editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, will share AN EDITOR'S OUTLOOK with readers each Saturday as a regular weekend columnist for the Daily Standard.

Beginning in Saturdays issue, Jones' column promises to examine and clarify a cross section of issues, problems and events that cross the desk of a busy editor during the course of a newsmaking day in his life.

Jones declares that partisan politics per se are OUT as far as his column is concerned. So is anger, just for the sake of creating controversy. "I think we overdo our viewing with alarm," Jones says. "The 'professional angry man' is soon reduced to studiously misinterpreting the motives of others, which leads to cynicism and eventual dullness. If you go through life with your whistle cord tied down, people will find you merely noisy and eventually you'll run out of steam!"

Jones doesn't intend to run out of steam. "There are a lot of good things going on in the world and I'm going to try to find a lot of things that I think are worth cheering over."

This doesn't mean that Jones won't nurture a good strong "beef" once in awhile. "I'll call 'em as I see 'em", he declares. "An independent press continues to be our greatest asset in protecting all the other freedoms so important to the future of mankind. Without an independent press leading the way for a free and informed people, our democratic principles could not long survive."

When Jones DOES take up a cause, the results are often far flung. A few months ago he received wide acclaim for his keynote speech, entitled "America's Moral Crisis," at the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. A reprint of this speech in the Reader's Digest is said to have received more requests

Memorial Day Story On Memorial Gifts

In the sorrow that follows the loss of a loved one close to us, a relative or friend, to cancer, there is the wish to honor the departed.

At times like these, many find solace in dedicating a memorial gift to the American Cancer Society. This contribution provides a way to perpetuate the memory of a life that has been lost. It offers a way to prevent the further suffering of others.

Memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society help in many ways; they support cancer research in hospitals, laboratories, and clinics. They provide fellowships for doctors and scientists. They help train manpower needed to carry out future research. They also make possible the service programs which provide direct and specific help for those now stricken with cancer.

Because Memorial Day each year draws our attention to those who have died, it seems appropriate at this time to remember them with memorial gifts. Such a contribution, large or small, brings the moment of final victory closer.

The Scott County Unit of the American Cancer Society will be pleased to accept memorial gifts. They may be sent to Billie Burch - P.O. Box 809- Sikeston, Missouri.

A dignified card will be sent to the family of the deceased.

Two Counties Purchase Abandoned Bridge

Butler County and Stoddard County have jointly purchased a bridge across the St. Francis River which was abandoned by the Frisco Railroad, and it is planned to have the bridge in use this year.

Loren White, Presiding Judge of the Butler County Court said the bridge, at a location commonly known as Hodge's Ferry, near Rombauer, was purchased for a price of $500, $250 for each county. Judge White added that he believed the bridge, when ready for use, would open a new trade route into Poplar Bluff.

Judge White said that the bridge will be opened this year and traffic will drive across the levee to Foothill Road and then travel to Rombauer to Route Z.

The bridge will have to be floored and side rails will have to be consturcted before being used by vehicles.

Judge White stated that future plans call for opening a route on the abandoned right-of-way to Rombauer. He added that six additional bridges had been purchased along the abandoned right-of-way and the cost to Butler County was $750. An additional $250 was donated for the purchase of the birdges.

He said that six persons had been instrumental in negotiations for the purchase of the bridges. They are Bill Clarkson, Clyde Crawford, Lyman Mays, Lewis Brown, Dale Bond and Loyce Daniels.

Stoddard County is expected to open the other end of the road from the bridge to complete the new route.

Montgomery-Sells Trial Reaching High Pitch, Witness Sobs

Steps Retraced Leading Up To Fatal Accident

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells' attorney, James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer, questioned her yesterday about events of the night Miss Glenda Wiles, 24, was killed in an automobile wreck at 1:45 a.m. Oct. 14, 1959.

She testified about a visit to the King's Club with Joel A. Montgomery, Miss Bobbie L. Vance and three other men and about later stops at the Petroleum Club and the Skyway at the Peabody.

Q. -- Did you know Mr. Montgomery before that night?

A. -- I had met him several times before but I had never been out with him.

Q. -- Did you know he was married?

A. -- No, I did not.

Mrs. Sells said she had one drink at the King's Club early in the evening and that Mr. Montgomery ordered a second drink but that she gave it to a piano player to play a request for her.

She said at the Petroleum Club one drink was ordered for her but she did not drink it and the ice melted. She said a second drink, Scotch and water, was ordered and she drank about half of it before leaving for the Skyway, taking with her a third drink which had been ordered.

Mrs. Sells said she gave that drink to a friend of Mr. Montgomery's in the Skyway. She told of Mr. Montgomery, Miss Vance and herself going to a garage on Front Street and getting into Mr. Montgomery's car.

Q. -- Had you had much or little driving experience?

A. -- I had been driving for a year and a half or two years, but I didn't own a car and I didn't drive much.

Q. -- Did you ever drive a car like that before. . . equipped with power brakes and power steering?

A. -- No, sir. . . .

Mrs. Sells said the car ran out of gasoline on Front and that occupants of another car offered aid. She said the second car left before she started the Montgomery car again. Occupants of the second car testified Tuesday Mrs. Sells ran red lights at Front and Monroe, Main and Monroe, and Second and Monroe. They said they followed the Montgomery car.

Q. -- What was the condition of the traffic light when you reached it at Monroe and Front—

A. -- It was green. . . I made the turn.

Q. -- What was the condition of the light at Main and Monroe?

A. -- It was red. . . I stopped.

Mrs. Sells said she did not recall the condition of the lights on Monroe at Second and Third.

She then testified about the lights at Monroe and Fourth and at Monroe and Wellington, the wreck scene.

She said she agreed to a drunkometer test at the hospital but could not blow up the balloon, because of an injured lip. Mrs. Sells said when she awakened at the hospital the morning after the accident she was chained to the bed.

Mr. Schaeffer yesterday hammered at Police Inspector H. S. Bivens about police work in the case.

Q. -- Did you make a written report to the attorney general's office about your investigation?

A. -- If I did I don't remember.

Q. -- You mean as chief investigating officer of this whole shebang you made no written report?

A. -- No, that was not my responsibility. It was done by officers under me.

Later Inspector Bivens said he conferred with the attorney general's office. "I asked if Mr. Montgomery could be indicted on the charges on the facts I had. I was told the charges to place against Mrs. Sells and they said they didn't think any charges would be placed against Mr. Montgomery."

Reading from the transcript of Mrs. Sells' first trial in 1960, Mr. Schaeffer showed that Inspector Bivens did not testify then that Mrs. Sells told him she ran a red light or that Mr. Montgomery told her to.

Q. -- Did you anywhere in the former trial testify to any such statement?

A. -- I did not. . .

Q. -- Whom in the attorney general's office did you bring this (statement) to the attention of?

A. -- Mr. (Braxton) Gandy (former chief assistant in the office).

Mr. Montgomery's attorney Don G. Owens also questioned Inspector Bivens sharply.

The police officer said he tried to talk with Miss Vance at a hospital but because of her injuries he could not. He said police tried to contact her later but could not do so.

Q. -- You have never taken a statement from her?

A. -- No, sir. . . .

Q. -- As police officer in charge of the investigation can you state what precipitated . . . the indictment against Mr. Montgomery?

A. -- No, sir.

Q. -- Was it a surprise to you?

A. -- Yes, it was a surprise to me.

Inspector Bivens said he did not know an indictment was being sought against Mr. Montgomery until he was told the case was going before the Grand Jury in January, 1962. He said police had no knowledge after Mrs. Sells' first trial that Mr. Montgomery would be indicted.

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells

Mrs. Sells Takes Stand

Mrs. Betty Lou Sells broke down on the witness stand yesterday afternoon during cross-examination on why she was driving millionaire Joel Montgomery's car at the time of a fatal wreck Oct. 14, 1959.

Mrs. Sells was the first defense witness in the involuntary manslaughter trial of her and Mr. Montgomery, a former Memphian who is now a civic leader in Sikeston, Mo.

"Did he ever say why he wanted you to drive?" asked Asst. Atty. Gen. James Beasley.

Mrs. Sells hesitated a moment and replied, "I don't remember."

"Do you recall . . ." Mr. Beasley started another question, but Mrs. Sells broke into loud weeping and put her head down on the side of the stand.

The defense then asked for a short recess and Mrs. Sells was taken to the rest room. She resumed her testimony after about 20 minutes. The trial was recessed for the day at 6:15 p.m. about 30 minutes after Mrs. Sells returned.

Earlier, under questioning from defense attorneys, she denied Mr. Montgomery told her to run any red lights before the crash at Monroe and Wellington, where Miss Glenda Wiles, 24, was killed.

She also denied running any red lights that night and she said she was not intoxicated.

Police Insp. H. S. Bivens testified earlier yesterday that Mrs. Sells told him at a hospital after the wreck that she had run the red light at the time of the wreck and that Mr. Montgomery had told her to run it. She denied making the statement.

"As you approached Monroe and Fourth (the intersection just west of Monroe and Wellington) what happened?" asked defense attorney James F. 'Tim' Schaeffer.

"Just as we approached the light it changed to orange," Mrs. Sells said. "I started to stop. Mr. Montgomery said, 'Go on through. You have plenty of time.' So I went on through."

She said the light was not red when she last saw it. Mrs. Sells, then 21, who was driving Mr. Montgomery's car in which he and Miss Bobbie Vance were passengers, said she speeded up to about 40 to 45 miles per hour in the block approaching Wellington. She said she and Miss Vance were talking as they neared the intersection.

"When we were about two cars lengths away from the light it turned orange," Mrs. Sells said. "I speeded up a little. I was going through it. Miss Vance said something. She may have screamed or something . . . she had some type of reaction."

Mrs. Sells said she did not see the car traveling south on Wellington in which Miss Wiles was a passenger and which was being driven by Miss Alice K. Gassaway. She said she may have seen the headlights.

On Tuesday, Miss Vance testified the Montgomery car came to a yellow light at Monroe and Fourth and Mr. Montgomery told Mrs. Sells to "run this one and run them all."

The state rested its case in the trial at 3 p.m. yesterday before Mrs. Sells' testimony.

Mrs. Sells said although she visited night spots with Miss Vance and Mr. Montgomery before the wreck she had only one drink and half of another.

Mr. Schaeffer and Don G. Owens, attorney for Mr. Montgomery, sharply attacked handling of the case by police and the attorney general's office.

Inspector Bivens said he did not question Miss Gassaway after the accident. He said she was too badly injured to give a statement immediately.

This is the truth. Yesterday a man and woman in Sikeston walked into one of the furniture stores and purchased $1,200 worth of furniture.

The man went back to the store this morning and asked them for his check back, saying, "me and my wife have separated."

FAMINE AND THE MONSOON

THE MONSOON bursts over Ceylon toward the end of this month and then it inches up the Indian peninsula. It brings both punishment and promise. It should end more than a year of drought which has brought an undeclared famine to India. But it could prevent the shipment of emergency food into Orissa state, as it did just 100 years ago, in May 1866.

Famine and drought are no strangers to the Indian subcontinent. Orissa state always has been the worst hit. But this year's drought-caused hunger has been complicated by bad administration at the state and perhaps the federal level and by what appears to be an unwillingness to face facts.

Thus India's Food Minister, C. G. Subramanian, states blandly: "There have been no deaths from starvation in India," while newspaper reporters are sending out estimates of famine deaths ranging from 50 to 200. Subramanian says that the people who have died in Orissa and other states perhaps had "suffered from various diseases for a long time -- such as tuberculosis, diabetes." This kind of circumlocution is a good deal like saying a man who has been killed by a truck was going to die of lung cancer anyway.

THE INDIAN CENTRAL GOVERNMENT on May 16 allotted another $4.2 million for relief work in Orissa state. That amount brings to almost $8 1/2 million the emergency grants to the state, where about 25 per cent of the population is suffering malnutrition from the effects of last summer's severe drought.

The government was slow to inaugurate relief work. Up until recently the problem in Orissa, particularly in the economically and socially backward western part of the state, has been as much a shortage of purchasing power as of food. Rice and at times other food are generally available at price-controlled, government-operated "fair price" shops.

Orissa is the center of India's rice bowl. Normally more than 8 million tons of the grain are grown there every year. This year the lack of rain has caused a shortfall estimated as high as 7 million tons.

AFTER 14 YEARS of much touted planning, the Indian people cannot get their basic necessities -- rice, wheat, and sugar, for example -- in adequate quantities or at reasonable prices. India already consumes half as much of the annual wheat production of the United States as we do ourselves.

President Johnson now has determined that American aid must not become so automatic and unquestioned that India will feel relieved of its obligation to feed itself. Fruit of the recent discussions in Washington between the President and India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi budded in mid-May with the announcement that India would collaborate with the American International Oil Company (AIOC) to establish a 200,000-ton fertilizer plant in Madras. Seven U. S. commercial banks are advancing AIOC a $37 million loan.

Fertilizers are the key to India's new crash food program. Mrs. Gandhi had to weather much left-wing criticism to push the fertilizer deal through. Even the so-called ginger group in her own Congress Party was sniping. The deal is significant because it may trigger other co-operative arrangements. The aim is 2 1/2 million tons of Indian-produced fertilizer by 1970, as against present production of about 400,000 tons.

A NICE PLACE TO VISIT

Tell a New Yorker that his home town is noisy, dirty, rude and expensive and he will readily agree. A certain discomfort has always been part of the price of living in the country's biggest and most exciting city. Lately, however, the tribulations of being a New Yorker have begun to outweigh the compensating joys. The old saw, "It's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there," may not be so laughable after all.

New York seems intent on acting out E. M. Forster's story, "The Machine Stops," in which the huge mechanism that controls the world starts to run down and finally sputters to a halt. An alarming number of machines have ground to a halt in New York in recent memory. The lights went out last November. The subway system greeted the New Year by not running. Some or all of the newspapers have been on strike three times in four years. Long Island Rail Road diesel trains stayed in their yards on May 10, and, not to be outdone, metropolitan taxi drivers went on strike the following day.

That should be enough, but it isn't. New Yorkers recently got official confirmation of what they had long suspected, that they breathe the country's dirtiest air. A prolonged drought -- which has shown signs of abating -- forced ex-Mayor Robert F. Wagner to impose semi-voluntary water rationing. One half of all American drug addicts live in New York. The Broadway theatre depends more and more on mediocre musicals and imported British drama. Even the Yankees lost the winning habit. Mayor John V. Lindsay inherited the task of changing all this, of shoring up New York's glamor and self-respect. Unpopular measures, such as higher taxes, were called for, and Lindsay has not hesitated to urge them. The response to date has been less than enthusiastic. Middle-class whites continue to migrate to the suburbs, and the New York Stock Exchange has threatened to set up shop across the Hudson in New Jersey. If New York is "the nation's thyroid gland," as Christopher Morley once wrote, it has developed a goiter.

A FANTASTIC RECORD

Missouri has seen many governors in her day. And Missourians have seen many governors flop after even the first session with the legislature.

BUT NOW ALONG comes a fellow by the name of Governor Warren E. Hearnes, who has had not one session of the Missouri legislature, but two of them. And he comes out of both sessions even more popular than when he first went into office.

There has to be an explanation of some kind for this remarkable man in his own right.

He had served in the house of representatives as a young man. He had earned the right to be speaker of the house. He handled himself well and he earned the respect of his fellow lawmakers.

Then he stepped up to the post of secretary of state. He never lost touch with members of the legislature.

THEN HE DECIDED to seek the governorship. Running without much support and especially running against the Establishment, Warren E. Hearnes went up and down the state of Missorui, pleading his cause. His earnestness impressed thousands of Missourians.

Enough were they impressed that Warren E. Hearnes walked off with the Democratic nomination that few believed he could win. But he had the determination and right by his side was the charming Betty Hearnes, who doesn't take a back seat to her husband in the political field.

We have heard remarks made that during his campaign of almost two years, the then secretary of state trudged up and down, up and down, weary, tired and frightened every inch of the way. Well, it paid off.

And so have his two sessions of the Missouri legislature. Members of the senate and house probably don't always agree with Governor Hearnes, but we doubt if there is one single person in either the senate or the house who doubts his honesty and his integrity.

HIS FIRST legislative session was almost unbelievable. He accomplished more than any other governor ever accomplished in one session. He had his views on what he believed would be good for Missouri. And he got almost what he wanted.

Then came the special session that ended last week. And it was the same story. Governor Hearnes' batting average was well at the top again. And it was the same sincerity, the same desire to serve citizens of Missouri, the same honesty he has always shown that brought him to the close of another successful session.

It isn't until 1968 that Missouri will select another governor. It might be advisable to call off any election plans for that year, because just as certain as election days rolls around in 1968 and just as certain if the name Warren E. Hearnes appears as a candidate for governor, the verdict could be reached right now.

WARREN E. HEARNES will be named to a second term as governor of Missouri. It couldn't happen to a nicer fellow and the state of Missouri couldn't be more blessed than to have him as governor for another four years.

One reader of this column asked a question about the liability of a back-seat driver for an accident, and the answer may surprise you.

Q: "It seems to me I've heard somewhere that a passenger who directs the driver to drive in a way that causes an accident is just as guilty as the driver. Am I right?" Q. R., Spring Valley, N. Y.

A: Traffic Law, and numerous court cases in most states, hold the back-seat driver as liable as the driver. If a passenger induces a driver to turn into a one-way street, and a collision results, the officer can issue a citation both to the driver and his passenger.

Another reader writes not a question, but a suggestion. Says R. D. of Montgomery, Ohio: "I used to have trouble with pranksters stealing my license plate. But, I made a slip-in frame that bolts to the inside of my trunk in the space left after I sawed out the section depressed for mounting the plate on the outside."

May we add that a license plate inside the trunk also is less likely to get dirty. A license plate that is obscured is no help for drivers injured in accidents who need to be identified quickly. When the plate is reflective, mud and grime also reduce the light-reflecting properties that can save your life at night.

Q: "How much tax do I pay when I buy a new car?" P. B., Drexel Hill, Penn.

A: The average amount of Federal excise tax alone is $225. To that you must add state and local sales tax, and use tax.

It is interesting to note that the $1.8 billion the Federal government derived last year from the automotive excise tax goes into the general funds of the U. S. Treasury. It does not support the Federal-aid highway program, as does most other Federal automotive tax.

WRITE'EM OR WEEP!!

At the bitter end of the President's long-delayed Labor Message came the tail that wagged the dog -- the reluctant and apologetic recommendation that Congress remove from the Taft-Hartley Act the 44 words of Section 14 (b) that empower the states to protect their workers against compulsory unionism.

This recommendation was offered, the President said, "with the hope of reducing conflicts in our national labor policy that for several years have divided Americans in various states." The division rises from the fact that the citizens of 19 states have availed themselves of the labor freedom made possible by 14 (b) while those of 31 states have not as yet done so. Simply stated, the President would remove the "conflict" by scuttling the right to work without paying union dues where it is now state law, while terminating the chance of ever having such liberty in all the others.

The President did not say he is asking repeal of 14 (b) to pay off his election debt to the AFL-CIO chieftains who ordered out their troops and opened the union treasuries to campaign for him in a big and effective way. If this is not so, Mr. Johnson might have achieved his stated desire to "ensure uniform application of our national labor relations policy" by proposing a Federal open-shop law ensuring to all workers in all states the right and privilege of voluntary unionism!

And this reform might have been accomplished far more easily and have added considerably more luster to the LBJ "image." Every Congressman knows -- and certainly the President should -- that the American people do not want compulsory unionism. The latest of several public opinion polls attesting to this pegs the opposition at two-to-one. No less an authority than Speaker McCormack has expressed doubt of enough House votes to pass a repealer of 14 (b).

But it would be foolhardy to think that a President with LBJ's reputation on Capitol Hill would now ask "early and favorable consideration" of this proposal if he did not feel sure of getting it.

If the President has his way, the freedom to join or not to join a union will, overnight, become a bitter memory. Unhorsed for a time in 19 states, the membership drives of the labor bosses restored to the saddle will make Genghis Khan look like a Boy Scout. But it cannot happen if every American who wants right-to-work laws will tell his Congressman and his Senators so --and PUT IT IN WRITING. A majority in both houses will support 14 (b) -- if their constituents support them. Without support, we should expect Administration pressures to insure a majority.

Better to write today than blame yourself tomorrow.

MAN OF AMBITION

It is refreshing, in an era when millions of Americans look to Big Government for support, and where other millions mold their personalities to the cautious stereotype of Big Industry's "organization man", to hear an authentic voice speaking out on behalf of the Man of Ambition.

The Horatio Alger hero, determined to build a career out of humble beginnings, still has a role on the American scene. Such a one is Walter H. Simson of New Jersey, who, in October 1929, foresaw the need for a better electric light bulb and founded Duro-Test Corporation. While the industry giants and some 200 scrambling small manufacturers fought the battle of price, he set his course for greater serviceability and specialization.

Today his company ranks fourth in its field. The giants remain, engulfing a market with sheer volume and accessibility; the small companies, for the most part, have fallen by the wayside. But Duro-Test has prospered with products for industrial and for home use, many of which provide special effects or serve special needs for markets which the volume-minded ignore.

Walter Simson's is a refreshing voice which gives us a necessary reminder that there are rewards in our society for a young man with imagination.

HIGH COST OF EATING

Americans spent more for food in 1965 -- about six per cent more -- yet at the same time spent less.

The paradox is explained by the fact that average income after taxes was up by six- and -a-half per cent over 1964, meaning that while food spending increased in absolute amounts, as a percentage of income it declined.

The total national food bill was $85.5 billion, reports the Institute of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota. This averaged out to about $439 for each citizen. Averages are deceiving, however.

Single consumers spent an estimated $675 for food compared to about $570 per person for a two-person family and $285 per person for a family of six or more.

Americans spent another $12 billion, says the institute, for alcoholic beverages.

H. L. Hunt Says

THE TWO-PARTY SYSTEM

Because the two-party system seems so natural to us and we have known it in full vigor for almost all of our history as a nation, it is sometimes hard to remember that in most of the world it has hardly been tried, and where tried has very rarely worked. It has firmly established itself only in the English-speaking countries.

The two-party system is the best way to run government in a free country, but it is also the most difficult. It is constantly being pulled in two opposite directions. It is pulled toward a single-party system by those who want to build an all-powerful executive which would control politics as well as government. It is pulled toward a multi-party system by those who in their enthusiasm for causes, just and unjust, refuse to recognize the need for working and dealing with people who do not always agree completely with their ideas.

A one-party system creates a full-scale dictatorship almost immediately. A multi-party system divides a nation into feuding factions, breaking down into smaller and smaller groups, leading to disorganization and chaos out of which a dictator emerges.

Communist dictatorship in Russia is the result of a one-party system. Charles De Gaulle's dictatorship in France is the result of a multi-party system. Though the two systems are different, their results are the same.

If we would preserve freedom in these United States, we must retain and strengthen the two-party system, which today is very seriously weakened. Public-spirited citizens will make this a primary task for this election year. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Behind the President's vigorous fight-to-the-end statements to cheering Democrats in Chicago and Long Beach last week were some significant cables from Saigon. They reported that the morale of the Viet Cong is bad, that U. S. armed forces are taking more and more prisoners, that the war is going better than ever for the United States.

Based on these reports, the President, for the first time, sees light at the end of the tunnel. He figures that victory is now within sight and that his firm position will be vindicated.

It is not clear whether these military estimates take into consideration the political upheaval in the cities of South Viet Nam. And some joy-killers recalled that the military once before gave the President a firm estimate that the war would be over in 12 months.

Nevertheless the President is highly pleased with the battle reports and they have given him new confidence in dealing with some of his old liberal friends in the senate.

One point he constantly reminds them is that "it takes two to tango," in other words, it takes two to sit down at the peace table.

To one prominent "Dove" senator he said: "You go and arrange a peace conference anywhere in the world. I authorize you to arrange it. I not only will attend, but I'll be there ahead of any of them."

CAUTIOUS ESCALATION

Best description of Lyndon Johnson's technique in Viet Nam is that of a cautious escalator and simultaneously a vigorous olive branch pusher. While conducting an all - out war policy publicly, privately he has made conciliatory moves toward the Chinese which right - wing criticis will brand as revolutionary when they leak out.

Invariably when the military have recommended escalation, he has edged away from "the brink." When they first proposed hitting North Viet Nam with B-52 bombers sent all the way from Guam, his reaction was: "Aren't there any targets in South Viet Nam?" The military replied in the negative.

"You go back and draw up a list of targets in South Viet Nam," was his order.

Later, of course, he did bomb the North.

His general direction in guiding the war is always up. It is intensified, not relaxed. He did relax during the 1966-Viet Nam new year to let the "Doves" in his administration conduct an intensive drive for peace.

Later he ribbed some of them in cabinet meetings that if he hadn't suspended bombing during that period he wouldn't have given Senator Fulbright and other liberals an excuse for criticizing his resumption of bombing.

NEW DEAL WITH CHINA?

Meanwhile the President has authorized his diplomats to take some radical new steps for better understanding in the Far East. He has instructed Secretary of State Rusk to sound out the Chinese regarding a foreign minister - level conference on the subject of improving relations between the two countries and resuming diplomatic relations if possible.

The United States is also ready to revise its long-time policy of barring Communist China from the United Nations.

This would break with everything the United States has stood for in the Far East since Chiang Kai-Shek took refuse on Formosa during the Truman administration, leaving the Chinese Communists to dominate the most populous country in the world.

As a senator, Lyndon Johnson led the Democratic party in giving President Eisenhower complete freedom to declare war in the Formosan Straits in order to support not only Nationalist China but Generalissimo Chiang's risky right to place his troops within three and twelve miles of the Chinese mainland on the islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

However, the Lyndon Johnson who is now President has come to realize what Lyndon Johnson as a senator did not realize -- namely that you can't ignore a nation of 700,000,000 people, especially when it has nuclear weapons, and that the best way to deal with a nation of such size and potential strength is to talk to it, not ignore it.

It's probable that the Chinese will not respond immediately to Dean Rusk's overtures. It's too profitable propagandawise for them to have the United States as a whipping boy. Teaching Chinese children to say "hate Imperialist America" helps to unify the Chinese people.

Nevertheless the President has learned the hard way that the key to peace in Southeast Asia is Red China. He knows he will never get North Viet Nam to sit down at the conference table as long as the Chinese are opposed.

His experts also argue that the old leaders of Red China will soon be replaced. Mao Tse-Tung is suffering from Parkinson's disease and cannot be propped up indefinitely. His contemporaries are all in their seventies. A new generation is about to take over, comparable to the post - Stalin Khrushchev leaders in Russia. The Johnson plan is to make overtures now which may bear fruit later.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Inside Story Of Small Bands Behind Britain's Runaway Strike.

New York: -- It took just one trans-Atlantic telephone call to corroborate this columnist's belief that small bands of men can cripple a nation.

They need only be strategically placed. There need not be many cells. A small network of loners can pull it.

That's what happened on the British docks -- loners, "extremists," reformers in name only, Communists and a personality cult called Trotskyites have for years been working 'round the clock to get at London's jugular.

At 12:01 a.m. May 16 they did so, despite the power of the moderate leaders of the English National Union of Seamen (NUS).

There was rehearsal for all this which led to Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government declaring a State of Emergency.

This declaration itself is fantastic since Her Majesty's Minister of Labor is Ray Gunter, a former union leader himself, as are Deputy Prime Minister George Brown and Frank Cousins, who went into the cabinet straight away from the presidency of England's largest union, its transport workers.

That rehearsal came in 1960. Then, an unauthorized runaway dock stoppage ran four weeks and cost $60 million and brutally damaged Britain's economy.

The five men who led the wildcatting dockers then won so strong a following that today they are on the executive council of the seamen's union -- and virtually forced the May 16 stoppage.

Right off it should be reported that the official strike leader, a gentle chap by name of William Hogarth, NUS General Secretary, is a moderate. He is anti-Communist. They fight him with all the gut-gang tactics in their revolutionary handbook. He has beaten them time and time again. He did not want this mammoth waterfront stoppage. But they forced him into it.

He and his 15-man negotiating committee originally had recommended accepting the shipowners' hefty final offer. But the "extremists" would have none of it.

Like lights on a pin ball machine, the "extremists" popped up all over. Mark well the original five who led the wildcatter back in '60. They promised the seamen the world of tomorrow, today.

There is the grim Jim Slater, who led the 1960 strike on the Northeast Coast; Charles Hodgins, who was the '60 rebel "boss" at Hull; J. Worthington, their man at Liverpool; P. Nortsway organizer of the unofficial walkouts at Cardiff. Also Joe Kenney, imprisoned for a month at Southampton after he walked off a ship about to sail.

In six years they made their way with their reform-the-union band onto the powerful 48-man executive council.

There are others. Some are men who rove. They pop up in the construction trades, the auto plants and on the docks. And always trouble pops up with them.

One of the rovers joined the seamen's union, paid his initiation fee, paid no more dues and turned up as a militant on the London docks. Another rejoined the NUS after an 11-year lapse. Some of the strike committee suddenly find themselves led by men who never saw a ship except from shoreside.

With them come new committees. In '60 it was the National Seamen's Reform Movement. Now it is the London Seafarers' United Committee, some of whose members simply don't belong to the seafarers' union.

A band, described in the phone conversation as "operating shrilly in the West County" is the Bristol Channel Seafarers' Liaison Committee. Its leader is George Foulser. He has not had a seamen's registry card there since 1946.

And fully sprinkled along the embankment are a series of Communist and Trotskyite cells. Some of these units were spawned by men who operated in the U. S. These I spotted when in London not too long ago.

In his salty but quiet way, General Secretary Hogarth loathes them the most. He sees them as men dedicated to the disruption of the union, the Merchant Navy and the economy of the country. In turn, they all hate him because he is a sophisticated in-fighter, loyal to his union's 62,500 men, and abundantly devoted to his country.

To the cells, his patriotism in behalf of the proletariat and nation is poison. So all the bands, for one reason or another -- power or international politics -- concentrate on Hogarth. Their influence on the union's national board was strong enough to out-vote him and call for a strike.

Thus Hogarth was faced with fighting his own board and thus possibly losing control of the rank and file -- or taking the strike lead and through such control preventing it from smashing Britain's foreign trade -- its lifeblood.

And thus today he is the despised one, though he fought to avert the chaos.

It is a drama for American labor leaders to watch closey.

It is a script to be read and re-read by those cynics outside the labor movement, too, who pooh-pooh the inherent threat of small bands of men.

FAMINE AND THE MONSOON

THE MONSOON bursts over Ceylon toward the end of this month and then it inches up the Indian peninsula. It brings both punishment and promise. It should end more than a year of drought which has brought an undeclared famine to India. But it could prevent the shipment of emergency food into Orissa state, as it did just 100 years ago, in May 1866.

Famine and drought are no strangers to the Indian subcontinent. Orissa state always has been the worst hit. But this year's drought-caused hunger has been complicated by bad administration at the state and perhaps the federal level and by what appears to be an unwillingness to face facts.

Thus India's Food Minister, C. G. Subramanian, states blandly: "There have been no deaths from starvation in India," while newspaper reporters are sending out estimates of famine deaths ranging from 50 to 200. Subramanian says that the people who have died in Orissa and other states perhaps had "suffered from various diseases for a long time -- such as tuberculosis, diabetes." This kind of circumlocution is a good deal like saying a man who has been killed by a truck was going to die of lung cancer anyway.

THE INDIAN CENTRAL GOVERNMENT on May 16 allotted another $4.2 million for relief work in Orissa state. That amount brings to almost $8 1/2 million the emergency grants to the state, where about 25 per cent of the population is suffering malnutrition from the effects of last summer's severe drought.

The government was slow to inaugurate relief work. Up until recently the problem in Orissa, particularly in the economically and socially backward western part of the state, has been as much a shortage of purchasing power as of food. Rice and at times other food are generally available at price-controlled, government-operated "fair price" shops.

Orissa is the center of India's rice bowl. Normally more than 8 million tons of the grain are grown there every year. This year the lack of rain has caused a shortfall estimated as high as 7 million tons.

AFTER 14 YEARS of much touted planning, the Indian people cannot get their basic necessities -- rice, wheat, and sugar, for example -- in adequate quantities or at reasonable prices. India already consumes half as much of the annual wheat production of the United States as we do ourselves.

President Johnson now has determined that American aid must not become so automatic and unquestioned that India will feel relieved of its obligation to feed itself. Fruit of the recent discussions in Washington between the President and India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi budded in mid-May with the announcement that India would collaborate with the American International Oil Company (AIOC) to establish a 200,000-ton fertilizer plant in Madras. Seven U. S. commercial banks are advancing AIOC a $37 million loan.

Fertilizers are the key to India's new crash food program. Mrs. Gandhi had to weather much left-wing criticism to push the fertilizer deal through. Even the so-called ginger group in her own Congress Party was sniping. The deal is significant because it may trigger other co-operative arrangements. The aim is 2 1/2 million tons of Indian-produced fertilizer by 1970, as against present production of about 400,000 tons.

Q: "How much tax do I pay when I buy a new car?" P. B., Drexel Hill, Penn.

A: The average amount of Federal excise tax alone is $225. To that you must add state and local sales tax, and use tax.

It is interesting to note that the $1.8 billion the Federal government derived last year from the automotive excise tax goes into the general funds of the U. S. Treasury. It does not support the Federal-aid highway program, as does most other Federal automotive tax.

WRITE'EM OR WEEP!!

At the bitter end of the President's long-delayed Labor Message came the tail that wagged the dog -- the reluctant and apologetic recommendation that Congress remove from the Taft-Hartley Act the 44 words of Section 14 (b) that empower the states to protect their workers against compulsory unionism.

This recommendation was offered, the President said, "with the hope of reducing conflicts in our national labor policy that for several years have divided Americans in various states." The division rises from the fact that the citizens of 19 states have availed themselves of the labor freedom made possible by 14 (b) while those of 31 states have not as yet done so. Simply stated, the President would remove the "conflict" by scuttling the right to work without paying union dues where it is now state law, while terminating the chance of ever having such liberty in all the others.

The President did not say he is asking repeal of 14 (b) to pay off his election debt to the AFL-CIO chieftains who ordered out their troops and opened the union treasuries to campaign for him in a big and effective way. If this is not so, Mr. Johnson might have achieved his stated desire to "ensure uniform application of our national labor relations policy" by proposing a Federal open-shop law ensuring to all workers in all states the right and privilege of voluntary unionism!

And this reform might have been accomplished far more easily and have added considerably more luster to the LBJ "image." Every Congressman knows -- and certainly the President should -- that the American people do not want compulsory unionism. The latest of several public opinion polls attesting to this pegs the opposition at two-to-one. No less an authority than Speaker McCormack has expressed doubt of enough House votes to pass a repealer of 14 (b).

But it would be foolhardy to think that a President with LBJ's reputation on Capitol Hill would now ask "early and favorable consideration" of this proposal if he did not feel sure of getting it.

If the President has his way, the freedom to join or not to join a union will, overnight, become a bitter memory. Unhorsed for a time in 19 states, the membership drives of the labor bosses restored to the saddle will make Genghis Khan look like a Boy Scout. But it cannot happen if every American who wants right-to-work laws will tell his Congressman and his Senators so --and PUT IT IN WRITING. A majority in both houses will support 14 (b) -- if their constituents support them. Without support, we should expect Administration pressures to insure a majority.

Better to write today than blame yourself tomorrow.

MAN OF AMBITION

It is refreshing, in an era when millions of Americans look to Big Government for support, and where other millions mold their personalities to the cautious stereotype of Big Industry's "organization man", to hear an authentic voice speaking out on behalf of the Man of Ambition.

The Horatio Alger hero, determined to build a career out of humble beginnings, still has a role on the American scene. Such a one is Walter H. Simson of New Jersey, who, in October 1929, foresaw the need for a better electric light bulb and founded Duro-Test Corporation. While the industry giants and some 200 scrambling small manufacturers fought the battle of price, he set his course for greater serviceability and specialization.

Today his company ranks fourth in its field. The giants remain, engulfing a market with sheer volume and accessibility; the small companies, for the most part, have fallen by the wayside. But Duro-Test has prospered with products for industrial and for home use, many of which provide special effects or serve special needs for markets which the volume-minded ignore.

Walter Simson's is a refreshing voice which gives us a necessary reminder that there are rewards in our society for a young man with imagination.

HIGH COST OF EATING

Americans spent more for food in 1965 -- about six per cent more -- yet at the same time spent less.

The paradox is explained by the fact that average income after taxes was up by six-and -a-half per cent over 1964, meaning that while food spending increased in absolute amounts, as a percentage of income it declined.

The total national food bill was $85.5 billion, reports the Institute of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota. This averaged out to about $439 for each citizen. Averages are deceiving, however.

Single consumers spent an estimated $675 for food compared to about $570 per person for a two-person family and $285 per person for a family of six or more.

Americans spent another $12 billion, says the institute, for alcoholic beverages.

H. L. Hunt Says

THE TWO-PARTY SYSTEM

Because the two-party system seems so natural to us and we have known it in full vigor for almost all of our history as a nation, it is sometimes hard to remember that in most of the world it has hardly been tried, and where tried has very rarely worked. It has firmly established itself only in the English-speaking countries.

The two-party system is the best way to run government in a free country, but it is also the most difficult. It is constantly being pulled in two opposite directions. It is pulled toward a single-party system by those who want to build an all-powerful executive which would control politics as well as government. It is pulled toward a multi-party system by those who in their enthusiasm for causes, just and unjust, refuse to recognize the need for working and dealing with people who do not always agree completely with their ideas.

A one-party system creates a full-scale dictatorship almost immediately. A multi-party system divides a nation into feuding factions, breaking down into smaller and smaller groups, leading to disorganization and chaos out of which a dictator emerges.

Communist dictatorship in Russia is the result of a one-party system. Charles De Gaulle's dictatorship in France is the result of a multi-party system. Though the two systems are different, their results are the same.

If we would preserve freedom in these United States, we must retain and strengthen the two-party system, which today is very seriously weakened. Public-spirited citizens will make this a primary task for this election year. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Behind the President's vigorous fight-to-the-end statements to cheering Democrats in Chicago and Long Beach last week were some significant cables from Saigon. They reported that the morale of the Viet Cong is bad, that U. S. armed forces are taking more and more prisoners, that the war is going better than ever for the United States.

Based on these reports, the President, for the first time, sees light at the end of the tunnel. He figures that victory is now within sight and that his firm position will be vindicated.

It is not clear whether these military estimates take into consideration the political upheaval in the cities of South Viet Nam. And some joy-killers recalled that the military once before gave the President a firm estimate that the war would be over in 12 months.

Nevertheless the President is highly pleased with the battle reports and they have given him new confidence in dealing with some of his old liberal friends in the senate.

One point he constantly reminds them is that "it takes two to tango," in other words, it takes two to sit down at the peace table.

To one prominent "Dove" senator he said: "You go and arrange a peace conference anywhere in the world. I authorize you to arrange it. I not only will attend, but I'll be there ahead of any of them."

CAUTIOUS ESCALATION

Best description of Lyndon Johnson's technique in Viet Nam is that of a cautious escalator and simultaneously a vigorous olive branch pusher. While conducting an all - out war policy publicly, privately he has made conciliatory moves toward the Chinese which right - wing criticis will brand as revolutionary when they leak out.

Invariably when the military have recommended escalation, he has edged away from "the brink." When they first proposed hitting North Viet Nam with B-52 bombers sent all the way from Guam, his reaction was: "Aren't there any targets in South Viet Nam?" The military replied in the negative.

"You go back and draw up a list of targets in South Viet Nam," was his order.

Later, of course, he did bomb the North.

His general direction in guiding the war is always up. It is intensified, not relaxed. He did relax during the 1966-Viet Nam new year to let the "Doves" in his administration conduct an intensive drive for peace.

Later he ribbed some of them in cabinet meetings that if he hadn't suspended bombing during that period he wouldn't have given Senator Fulbright and other liberals an excuse for criticizing his resumption of bombing.

NEW DEAL WITH CHINA?

Meanwhile the President has authorized his diplomats to take some radical new steps for better understanding in the Far East. He has instructed Secretary of State Rusk to sound out the Chinese regarding a foreign minister - level conference on the subject of improving relations between the two countries and resuming diplomatic relations if possible.

The United States is also ready to revise its long-time policy of barring Communist China from the United Nations.

This would break with everything the United States has stood for in the Far East since Chiang Kai-Shek took refuse on Formosa during the Truman administration, leaving the Chinese Communists to dominate the most populous country in the world.

As a senator, Lyndon Johnson led the Democratic party in giving President Eisenhower complete freedom to declare war in the Formosan Straits in order to support not only Nationalist China but Generalissimo Chiang's risky right to place his troops within three and twelve miles of the Chinese mainland on the islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

However, the Lyndon Johnson who is now President has come to realize what Lyndon Johnson as a senator did not realize -- namely that you can't ignore a nation of 700,000,000 people, especially when it has nuclear weapons, and that the best way to deal with a nation of such size and potential strength is to talk to it, not ignore it.

It's probable that the Chinese will not respond immediately to Dean Rusk's overtures. It's too profitable propagandawise for them to have the United States as a whipping boy. Teaching Chinese children to say "hate Imperialist America" helps to unify the Chinese people.

Nevertheless the President has learned the hard way that the key to peace in Southeast Asia is Red China. He knows he will never get North Viet Nam to sit down at the conference table as long as the Chinese are opposed.

His experts also argue that the old leaders of Red China will soon be replaced. Mao Tse-Tung is suffering from Parkinson's disease and cannot be propped up indefinitely. His contemporaries are all in their seventies. A new generation is about to take over, comparable to the post - Stalin Khrushchev leaders in Russia. The Johnson plan is to make overtures now which may bear fruit later.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Inside Story Of Small Bands Behind Britain's Runaway Strike.

They need only be strategically placed. There need not be many cells. A small network of loners can pull it.

That's what happened on the British docks -- loners, "extremists," reformers in name only, Communists and a personality cult called Trotskyites have for years been working 'round the clock to get at London's jugular.

At 12:01 a.m. May 16 they did so, despite the power of the moderate leaders of the English National Union of Seamen (NUS).

There was rehearsal for all this which led to Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government declaring a State of Emergency.

This declaration itself is fantastic since Her Majesty's Minister of Labor is Ray Gunter, a former union leader himself, as are Deputy Prime Minister George Brown and Frank Cousins, who went into the cabinet straight away from the presidency of England's largest union, its transport workers.

That rehearsal came in 1960. Then, an unauthorized runaway dock stoppage ran four weeks and cost $60 million and brutally damaged Britain's economy.

The five men who led the wildcatting dockers then won so strong a following that today they are on the executive council of the seamen's union -- and virtually forced the May 16 stoppage.

Right off it should be reported that the official strike leader, a gentle chap by name of William Hogarth, NUS General Secretary, is a moderate. He is anti-Communist. They fight him with all the gut-gang tactics in their revolutionary handbook. He has beaten them time and time again. He did not want this mammoth waterfront stoppage. But they forced him into it.

He and his 15-man negotiating committee originally had recommended accepting the shipowners' hefty final offer. But the "extremists" would have none of it.

Like lights on a pin ball machine, the "extremists" popped up all over. Mark well the original five who led the wildcatter back in '60. They promised the seamen the world of tomorrow, today.

There is the grim Jim Slater, who led the 1960 strike on the Northeast Coast; Charles Hodgins, who was the '60 rebel "boss" at Hull; J. Worthington, their man at Liverpool; P. Nortsway organizer of the unofficial walkouts at Cardiff. Also Joe Kenney, imprisoned for a month at Southampton after he walked off a ship about to sail.

In six years they made their way with their reform-the-union band onto the powerful 48-man executive council.

There are others. Some are men who rove. They pop up in the construction trades, the auto plants and on the docks. And always trouble pops up with them.

One of the rovers joined the seamen's union, paid his initiation fee, paid no more dues and turned up as a militant on the London docks. Another rejoined the NUS after an 11-year lapse. Some of the strike committee suddenly find themselves led by men who never saw a ship except from shoreside.

With them come new committees. In '60 it was the National Seamen's Reform Movement. Now it is the London Seafarers' United Committee, some of whose members simply don't belong to the seafarers' union.

A band, described in the phone conversation as "operating shrilly in the West County" is the Bristol Channel Seafarers' Liaison Committee. Its leader is George Foulser. He has not had a seamen's registry card there since 1946.

And fully sprinkled along the embankment are a series of Communist and Trotskyite cells. Some of these units were spawned by men who operated in the U. S. These I spotted when in London not too long ago.

In his salty but quiet way, General Secretary Hogarth loathes them the most. He sees them as men dedicated to the disruption of the union, the Merchant Navy and the economy of the country. In turn, they all hate him because he is a sophisticated in-fighter, loyal to his union's 62,500 men, and abundantly devoted to his country.

To the cells, his patriotism in behalf of the proletariat and nation is poison. So all the bands, for one reason or another -- power or international politics -- concentrate on Hogarth. Their influence on the union's national board was strong enough to out-vote him and call for a strike.

Thus Hogarth was faced with fighting his own board and thus possibly losing control of the rank and file -- or taking the strike lead and through such control preventing it from smashing Britain's foreign trade -- its lifeblood.

And thus today he is the despised one, though he fought to avert the chaos.

It is a drama for American labor leaders to watch closey.

It is a script to be read and re-read by those cynics outside the labor movement, too, who pooh-pooh the inherent threat of small bands of men.

Flood Connects On Grand Slammer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City Athletics each had a big inning Wednesday night that provided them with victory.

The Cardinals exploded for seven runs in the seventh innings, four of them on Curt Flood's grand slam homer, to break open a 2-1 game and ship the Chicago Cubs, 9-1.

Kansas City scored all its runs in the sixth to defeat Washington 3-1. Ed Charles hit his first home run of the season in the rally.

Flood homered off Bill Faul, who came on in relief of Ted Abernathy after Abernathy gave up a two-run pinch single by Bob Skinner and yielded another run on a wild pitch.

Cardinal starter Nelson Briles gave up a homer to Adolfo Phillips on the first pitch of the game, but held the Cubs off through the seventh inning, when he departed for a pinch-hitter. The victory was Briles' first against two losses. He struck out nine.

Charles hit his homer leading off Kansas City's big sixth inning. Joe Nossek followed with a single and Fred Talbot was safe on an error. Wayne Causey brought in one run with a sacrifice fly and Ken Harrelson brought in another with a double.

The Senators got only three hits, although the Athletics employed five pitchers.

The only Senator run came off Talbot in the fourth when Bob Saverine's bunt went for a single Don Lock walked and Bob Chance hit a sacrifice fly after an infield out

Kansas City has an open date today.

Chicago lefthander Dick Ellsworth 1-5 will pitch tonight against St. Louis righthander Bob Gibson 4-5.

In ancient times lightning was regarded as the weapon of the gods. Areas struck by lightning were hedged off as sacred precincts and persons killed by lightning were not accorded the usual funeral rites but were buried on the spot where they were struck. In some of the more primitive parts of Africa today fires started by lightning are not extinguished, nor is aid given to a person struck down.

Shot Put Champion Heads Team

COLUMBIA, MO.,-- Big Eight conference shot put champion Gene Crews will head a six-man Missouri delegation into the Central Collegiate Conference championships this weekend at Notre Dame.

Crews, who won five of six possible Big Eight shot put titles in both indoor and outdoor competition, owns the best put in conference history, 61-7. He set the C.C.C. mark last year with a 58-1 1/4 toss.

Accompanying the Tiger co-captain on the journey to South Bend will be hurdler Garet von Netzer, high jumper Steve Herndon, pole-vaulter Charlie Beck, half-miler Terry Thompson and miler Charlie Conrad. Von Netzer, Herndon and Beck all finished second in their specialties to help the Tigers to a mildly surprising tie for fifth in the Big Eight outdoor meet.

Von Netzer, third in the Central Co.'s wide high hurdles last year, will be seeking another rugged field in the highs Saturday. Heading the opposition will be defending champion Gene Washington, Michigan State football halfback, who led the Spartans to a new NCAA 480 yard shuttle relay record at the Drake Relays.

Thompson, only a sophomore, ran a scorching 1:48.6 in the conference 880 championships but it was good only for a fourth-place finish. Oklahoma State's John Perry and Jim Metcalf ran the two fastest half-miles in the world this season in the same race.

Conrad failed to score in the conference outdoor test but the Park Hill senior owns a 1:51 for the 880 and 4:08.4 for the mile, which should rank him as a solid threat at Notre Dame.

Good Luck Bulldogs

Tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. the Bulldogs will meet the Huskies from St. Louis Ritenour High School at Heine Meine field in Lemay in a semi-final game of the Missouri State High School Activities Association baseball tournament.

The Bulldogs have a young team with very few starting veterans off last year's team.

There are various ingredients a high school team needs to become the STATE BASEBALL CHAMPION and coach Al Lane of the Bulldogs is hoping his Dogs have the right proportions.

The team's hopes rest on the strong arm of Gary Stallings and some excellent reliefing from Dan Kern and Rudy Manley along with a fine hitting attack which Coach Lane received in the regional game against Cape Central.

Senior second baseman Richard Montgomery is leading the team in hitting with a .390 average, but he has plenty of help from some underclassmen such as Wayne Limbaugh, Greg Bailey, and Rudy Manley to mention only a few.

If the Bulldogs' hitting is up to par, the Dogs have a great chance of knocking off the Huskies and advancing to the Finals which will be played Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. at Heine Meine field.

Mizzou Ends Season With 13-12 Record

COLUMBIA, MP., -- Sophomore Rudy Stroupe hit .350 this spring to lead a Missouri baseball team that was bugged by a familiar malady -- senioritis.

Verteran Tiger players just didn't come through in '66, as Coach John (Hi) Simmons' athletes toppled off the Big Eight pedestal after a four-year reign. Five lettermen hit for less than last year's output -- while pitchers Orv Hollrah and Terry L'Ange, who combined for an 8-2 record last year,

Mizzou tied for fourth in the league at 9-9, and was 13-12 for the season. Those 12 losses were the most ever dealt to a Simmons-coached team in 27 campaigns, except for the 1959 season when 13 victories were forfeited.

Stroupe, shortstop from Columbia, and Jim Loving -- another rookie who became a late-season regular -- were the best swingers for M.U. at .350 and .346. Top average among the veterans belonged to Ray Thorpe, the 5-7 speedster, at .270.

Second-baseman Bob Robben hit only .257 and drove in 12 runs, enough to win R.B.I. honors -- but a considerable dip from 1965 when he batted .440 and knocked in 25 runs.

Missouri batted .254 as a team.

Flood Connects On Grand Slammer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City Athletics each had a big inning Wednesday night that provided them with victory.

The Cardinals exploded for seven runs in the seventh innings, four of them on Curt Flood's grand slam homer, to break open a 2-1 game and ship the Chicago Cubs, 9-1.

Kansas City scored all its runs in the sixth to defeat Washington 3-1. Ed Charles hit his first home run of the season in the rally.

Flood homered off Bill Faul, who came on in relief of Ted Abernathy after Abernathy gave up a two-run pinch single by Bob Skinner and yielded another run on a wild pitch.

Cardinal starter Nelson Briles gave up a homer to Adolfo Phillips on the first pitch of the game, but held the Cubs off through the seventh inning, when he departed for a pinch-hitter. The victory was Briles' first against two losses. He struck out nine.

Charles hit his homer leading off Kansas City's big sixth inning. Joe Nossek followed with a single and Fred Talbot was safe on an error. Wayne Causey brought in one run with a sacrifice fly and Ken Harrelson brought in another with a double.

The Senators got only three hits, although the Athletics employed five pitchers.

The only Senator run came off Talbot in the fourth when Bob Saverine's bunt went for a single Don Lock walked and Bob Chance hit a sacrifice fly after an infield out

Kansas City has an open date today.

Chicago lefthander Dick Ellsworth 1-5 will pitch tonight against St. Louis righthander Bob Gibson 4-5.

In ancient times lightning was regarded as the weapon of the gods. Areas struck by lightning were hedged off as sacred precincts and persons killed by lightning were not accorded the usual funeral rites but were buried on the spot where they were struck. In some of the more primitive parts of Africa today fires started by lightning are not extinguished, nor is aid given to a person struck down.

Shot Put Champion Heads Team

COLUMBIA, MO.,-- Big Eight conference shot put champion Gene Crews will head a six-man Missouri delegation into the Central Collegiate Conference championships this weekend at Notre Dame.

Crews, who won five of six possible Big Eight shot put titles in both indoor and outdoor competition, owns the best put in conference history, 61-7. He set the C.C.C. mark last year with a 58-1 1/4 toss.

Accompanying the Tiger co-captain on the journey to South Bend will be hurdler Garet von Netzer, high jumper Steve Herndon, pole-vaulter Charlie Beck, half-miler Terry Thompson and miler Charlie Conrad. Von Netzer, Herndon and Beck all finished second in their specialties to help the Tigers to a mildly surprising tie for fifth in the Big Eight outdoor meet.

Von Netzer, third in the Central Co.'s 440 high hurdles last year, will be seeing another rugged field at the highs Saturday. Heading the opposition will be defending champion Gene Washington, Michigan State football halfback, who led the Spartans to a new NCAA 480 yard shuttle relay record at the Drake Relays.

F.B.I. Admits Eavesdropping

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON AP -- The Justice Department has sent an unprecedented memorandum to the Supreme Court admitting that Federal Bureau of Investigation agents secretly eavesdropped on conversations between a lawyer and his client -- a former associate of Bobby Baker.

The client, Washington public relations man Fred B. Black Jr., later was convicted of income tax evasion. But in the memorandum, Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall said Black should be given a court hearing.

Marshall's memorandum to the high court, sent Tuesday, indicated that the FBI apparently acted on its own when it "installed a listening device" in Black's hotel suite in Washington three years ago.

The memorandum said that neither the Justice Department attorneys who prosecuted Black nor "any other attorney of the Department of Justice" -- including Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach -- knew about the electronic snooping.

Black now is fighting his 1964 tax conviction and has asked the Supreme Court for the second time to review his conviction. The court denied Black's first request for review May 2.

He and Baker, former Senate Democratic secretary who has been indicted on a number of federal charges, were associated in a Washington vending machine business.

In his memorandum, Marshall said the bugging, which took place between February and April 1963, "was unrelated to the tax evasion case."

But he added: "The listening device was in operation from approximately two months before until approximately one month after the evidence was presented to the grand jury and the indictment was returned.

"During that time the monitoring agents overheard, among other conversations, exchanges between petitioner and the attorney who was then representing him in connection with the tax evasion charges on which he has been convicted."

Marshall said although the Justice Department is convinced "the monitoring of conversations had no effect upon his conviction or the fairness of his trial, we have no doubt that in the circumstances Black is entitled to a judicial determination."

Marshall emphasized the entire case against Black was based on investigation by the IRS and not the FBI, but added that Black should be allowed to raise the question in U. S. District Court whether any other conversations overheard by the agents "furnished any leads or evidence in his case."

Possibly indicating FBI practice in reporting to its parent Justice Department, Marshall said while the justice prosecutor had access to FBI reports summarizing the bugged information, "these reports did not disclose the manner in which the information had been obtained or that such information reflected discussions between petitioner and counsel."

A Justice Department spokesman said since last July -- at the explicit order of President Johnson -- electronic snooping has been confined to national security cases and may be conducted only with the attorney general's approval.

Controversial Amendments Before House Today

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON AP - The House wades into a stack of controversial amendments today as it moves toward expected passage of a bill to raise the federal minimum wage and broaden its coverage.

Supporters face a strenuous task in retaining the bill's full proposed new coverage of 7.2 million workers, including farm workers and employes of hotels, hospitals and restaurants.

They should have less difficulty in raising the present $1.25 an hour wage to $1.60, but a major effort is being planned to delay the effective date of the top rate from 1968, as proposed in the bill to 1970.

During four hours of debate Tuesday there was widespread agreement that wages of the nation's lowest paid workers should be raised -- at least to the $3,000-a-year regarded as the level of poverty in other federal programs. A wage of $1.60 would produce an annual income of $3,200.

It was not unanimous. Rep. Glenn Andrews, R-Ala., said the bill would create more poverty by forcing farms and small businesses to shut down because they can't pay higher wages.

There was evidence of bipartisan support for the main outlines of the measure, however, Rep. Alphonzo Bell, R-Calif., called for its passage intact, and Rep. William H. Ayres, R-Calif., said he wanted only one minor amendment. Both are members of the Education and Labor Committee which wrote the bill.

The proposal to delay the effective date of the $1.60 wage to 1970 is to be made by Rep. Thomas G. Morris, D-N.M. The bill provides for an increase to $1.40 next Feb. 1, and a stepup to $1.60 a year later.

Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., floor manager of the bill, is counting on the support of President Johnson to help defeat the Morris amendment. Johnson, in a talk to editors of labor publications Monday, endorsed the bill for the first time. He asked Congress for changes in the minimum wage law, but made no specific recommendations.

Other amendments that appear to have wide support would eliminate farm workers from coverage, exempt cannery workers from overtime, limit the size of retail establishments that would be covered, provide lower wages for teen-agers, and drop waiters and other tipped employes from the bill.

Large Debt Could Bring on Squeeze

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON AP - A $330-billion debt ceiling, although the highest ever, could force the Treasury Department into a financial squeeze during the next fiscal year if all its chips don't fall into line.

That is the belief today of some officials who feel the ceiling voted Tuesday by the House Ways and Means Committee eliminated most of the built-in headroom they allowed for contingencies.

The department requested a $332-billion temporary debt ceiling for fiscal 1967 which begins July 1, up from the present temporary limit of $328 billion.

The $332-billion figure would give the Treasury about $3 billion headroom. Officials feel this would permit more efficient management of the debt if the added authorization was not needed for contingencies.

The Treasury nearly bumped the ceiling in the late 1950s and was forced to stretch out payments of some of the government's bills to remain within the limit.

The lower ceiling, it was reported, also might force the government to sell some of its financial assets prematurely instead of waiting for an ideal time in the money market.

The House committee's selection of the lower figure apparently was based on a report by the staff of the Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue that the Treasury had forecast too large a budget deficit.

Treasury officials feel the joint committee's estimates are too optimistic.

The Treasury Department apparently plans to further move until the House acts on the debt ceiling-probably week after next. But it could request the Senate Finance Committee to stick with the original request of $332 billion.

If the Senate goes along with the higher limit, the outcome could be a splitting of the difference at $331 billion, a figure some Treasury officials say wouldn't be too hard to live with.

Nobody even discusses the possibility that Congress might refuse to act on a temporary ceiling and permit the limit to drop to its permanent level of $285 billion.

Congress always has gone along with an increase, although it has sometimes chopped the amount. It did so last year in approving the $328 billion figure, $1 billion short of the administration's request.

This year's request was based on a budget deficit of $3.9 billion for the fiscal year which ends June 30. Under a formula developed by former Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, this deficit is added to the existing temporary ceiling to reach the new figure.

But the Senate-House committee predicted a deficit under some circumstances might drop below $3.5 billion, but they can't foresee anything as low as the committee's figure.

Civil Rights Hearings To Be Completed

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON AP - A House Judiciary subcommittee hopes to complete its hearings on the administration's civil rights bill today, but the legislation may have a cloudy future.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who has been able to provide crucial Republican votes in past civil rights battles, suggested Tuesday that the 1966 measure might well be "put on the hook until next year."

Dirksen told a news conference this would give Congress more time to study the constitutionality of the measure's open housing provision and its section designed to prevent discrimination in the selection of state and federal juries.

The Illinois Republican stood firm on the position he previously had taken that the proposed ban on racial or religious discrimination in the sale or rental of housing is "absolutely unconstitutional."

Republican leaders in the House, however, have indicated they do not share Dirksen's views.

While they have not committed themselves, subcommittee members appear to favor keeping the house provision in the bill -- possibly with some exemptions.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., is expected to start its closed drafting sessions after Congress returns from the Memorial Day recess.

Senate hearings on the bill are scheduled to start June 2.

Organizers of next week's White House conference on civil rights, in a report issued Tuesday, called for immediate and long-range state and federal action to bring the Negro into equal status in housing, education, economic and job security, and the administration of justice.

The report, described as a blueprint for sweeping action at all levels to improve the Negro's lot, urge "an absolutely open, racially unrestricted market in which housing is affirmatively merchandised to families and persons of all racial groups."

It called for an end to de facto segregation in public schools and more action by private employers, unions, and government to provide Negroes with jobs.

Large Debt Could Bring on Squeeze

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON AP - A $330-billion debt ceiling, although the highest ever, could force the Treasury Department into a financial squeeze during the next fiscal year if all its chips don't fall into line.

That is the belief today of some officials who feel the ceiling voted Tuesday by the House Ways and Means Committee eliminated most of the built-in headroom they allowed for contingencies.

The department requested a $332-billion temporary debt ceiling for fiscal 1967 which begins July 1, up from the present temporary limit of $328 billion.

The $332-billion figure would give the Treasury about $3 billion headroom. Officials feel this would permit more efficient management of the debt if the added authorization was not needed for contingencies.

The Treasury nearly bumped the ceiling in the late 1950s and was forced to stretch out payments of some of the government's bills to remain within the limit.

The lower ceiling, it was reported, also might force the government to sell some of its financial assets prematurely instead of waiting for an ideal time in the money market.

The House committee's selection of the lower figure apparently was based on a report by the staff of the Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue that the Treasury had forecast too large a budget deficit.

Treasury officials feel the joint committee's estimates are too optimistic.

The Treasury Department apparently plans to further move until the House acts on the debt ceiling-probably week after next. But it could request the Senate Finance Committee to stick with the original request of $332 billion.

If the Senate goes along with the higher limit, the outcome could be a splitting of the difference at $331 billion, a figure some Treasury officials say wouldn't be too hard to live with.

Nobody even discusses the possibility that Congress might refuse to act on a temporary ceiling and permit the limit to drop to its permanent level of $285 billion.

Congress always has gone along with an increase, although it has sometimes chopped the amount. It did so last year in approving the $328 billion figure, $1 billion short of the administration's request.

This year's request was based on a budget deficit of $3.9 billion for the fiscal year which ends June 30. Under a formula developed by former Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, this deficit is added to the existing temporary ceiling to reach the new figure.

But the Senate-House committee predicted a deficit under some circumstances might drop below $3.5 billion, but they can't foresee anything as low as the committee's figure.

Civil Rights Hearings To Be Completed

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON AP - A House Judiciary subcommittee hopes to complete its hearings on the administration's civil rights bill today, but the legislation may have a cloudy future.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who has been able to provide crucial Republican votes in past civil rights battles, suggested Tuesday that the 1966 measure might well be "put on the hook until next year."

Dirksen told a news conference this would give Congress more time to study the constitutionality of the measure's open housing provision and its section designed to prevent discrimination in the selection of state and federal juries.

The Illinois Republican stood firm on the position he previously had taken that the proposed ban on racial or religious discrimination in the sale or rental of housing is "absolutely unconstitutional."

Republican leaders in the House, however, have indicated they do not share Dirksen's views.

While they have not committed themselves, subcommittee members appear to favor keeping the house provision in the bill -- possibly with some exemptions.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., is expected to start its closed drafting sessions after Congress returns from the Memorial Day recess.

Senate hearings on the bill are scheduled to start June 2.

Organizers of next week's White House conference on civil rights, in a report issued Tuesday, called for immediate and long-range state and federal action to bring the Negro into equal status in housing, education, economic and job security, and the administration of justice.

The report, described as a blueprint for sweeping action at all levels to improve the Negro's lot, urge "an absolutely open, racially unrestricted market in which housing is affirmatively merchandised to families and persons of all racial groups."

It called for an end to de facto segregation in public schools and more action by private employers, unions, and government to provide Negroes with jobs.

Johnson Given Notice To Provide More Answers

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON AP - Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen has given President Johnson firm notice that Congress wants more answers to what's happening in Viet Nam.

After hobbling into the Senate on crutches Tuesday -- his first appearance there since he broke a thigh bone in a fall May 10 Dirksen told a news conference he had discussed Viet Nam with the President when Johnson visited him at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

The Illinois Republican said during "a reasonably lengthy talk" with Johnson he proposed a bipartisan White House briefing for congressional leaders. The President promised to take the idea under advisement, Dirksen reported.

Dirksen's prodding -- coming as it does from an opposition party senator who has backed the administration's Southeast Asia action - may well produce a briefing at which Johnson would answer some plaguing questions about political stability and military progress in South Viet Nam.

At the White House deputy press secretary Robert H. Fleming said he had no comment on Dirksen's proposal.

But the mere fact that the GOP leader disclosed he had suggested it personally to Johnson indicates Dirksen believes congressional leaders need to have more background information to cope with the deterioration in popular support of the war effort.

Johnson has not met with the congressional leaders for several months.

In other developments Tuesday:

Secretary of State Dean Rusk reaffirmed the U.S. desire to negotiate peace in Viet Nam and said this country shall continue its "far-reaching, persistent efforts to bring the other side to the peace table."

United Nations Secretary-Genera U Thant said military operations in Viet Nam should be scaled down in an attempt to initiate peace discussions among the major powers including Red China. The war in South Viet Nam, he said, can no longer be described as a "fight for democracy."

While he avoided any personal assessment of the situation in Viet Nam at the news conference, Dirksen said that opinion polls indicated a downward shift in public support for Johnson's policies there.

He said he has the feeling the majority of the people are confused and frustrated by the seeming instability of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government. Dirksen added that they need more information about the situation in Saigon.

Grant Pay Raises To Employees in Effort to Halt Personnel Turnover

In an effort to halt a serious rate of employee turnover, the Missouri State Highway Commission has authorized pay increases for most Department employees beginning with the May paychecks.

The Commission authorized the increases on recommendation of Chief Engineer M. J. Snider, who said a heavy loss of employees is having an adverse effect on the Department's ability to carry on the state road program.

Pay increases range from a maximum of five per cent down to less than one per cent, depending on the relation of the employees' present salary to the salary range permitted for their particular job classification.

Snider said employees receiving the full five per cent raise generally are those in the lower paid jobs, while employees in higher paying positions are receiving the lesser percentages of increase.

The pay raises are being received by all but about 150 of the 6,098 salaried personnel on the Department's payroll as of May 1. Those not receiving a raise are top management people whose salaries are limited by statute and some employees who are at the top of the salary range for their job classification.

Snider reported that latest separation records show that employee turnover in the Department now is running about 17 per cent a year.

Particularly harmful, he said, is that many of the employees leaving the Department for better paying jobs elsewhere are experienced people with several years of service.

"The turnover rate is serious in all job classifications in the Department -- professional, technical, office and field," Snider explained. "Geographically, the most critical employee shortages exist in the metropolitan areas of St. Louis and Kansas City, where we are understaffed. But the turnover is also serious in the rest of the state."

The chief engineer said competition for employees in all fields has intensified greatly in the last few months, making it difficult for the Department to retain present employees and attract qualified new people.

One example of the competition, Snider said, is the fact that the Department was able to hire only one civil engineering graduate from college campuses this Spring, despite interviewing and extending job offers to 45 prospects.

On-campus recruiting efforts were carried on at the University of Missouri in Columbia and Rolla, St. Louis University, Washington University, the University of Arkansas, the University of Kansas and Kansas State University.

In previous years the Department usually has had job acceptances by 30 to 35 per cent of the civil engineering graduates to whom offers were extended, Snider reported.

The pay increases will add $129,425 a month to the Department's payroll, including $14,064 to the administrative payroll and $115,361 to the road fund payroll.

Snider emphasized that the payroll of the Department, with the salary increases, will be within the appropriations made by the General Assembly.

The chief engineer said the pay increases are narrowing the gap between the lower and higher paid job classifications to a level inconsistent with normally accepted business practices. But he said that because of the emergency situation existing, it was necessary the action be taken in an effort to make the Department more competitive in the job market so as to keep the state's road program moving with maximum efficiency.

The chief engineer reported that in an action entirely separate from the granting of pay raises, the Commission revised upward the maximum possible to be paid for almost all jobs in the Department. The revisions were ten per cent, except where it was necessary to reduce this percentage due to legislative salary restrictions.

Those revisions were made, Snider said, to allow many of the pay increases which now are being granted, as well as to give most employees an opportunity to earn merit increases in the future.

Johnson Given Notice To Provide More Answers

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON AP - Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen has given President Johnson firm notice that Congress wants more answers to what's happening in Viet Nam.

After hobbling into the Senate on crutches Tuesday -- his first appearance there since he broke a thigh bone in a fall May 10 Dirksen told a news conference he had discussed Viet Nam with the President when Johnson visited him at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

The Illinois Republican said during "a reasonably lengthy talk" with Johnson he proposed a bipartisan White House briefing for congressional leaders. The President promised to take the idea under advisement, Dirksen reported.

Dirksen's prodding -- coming as it does from an opposition party senator who has backed the administration's Southeast Asia action - may well produce a briefing at which Johnson would answer some plaguing questions about political stability and military progress in South Viet Nam.

At the White House deputy press secretary Robert H. Fleming said he had no comment on Dirksen's proposal.

But the mere fact that the GOP leader disclosed he had suggested it personally to Johnson indicates Dirksen believes congressional leaders need to have more background information to cope with the deterioration in popular support of the war effort.

Johnson has not met with the congressional leaders for several months.

In other developments Tuesday:

Secretary of State Dean Rusk reaffirmed the U.S. desire to negotiate peace in Viet Nam and said this country shall continue its "far-reaching, persistent efforts to bring the other side to the peace table."

United Nations Secretary-Genera U Thant said military operations in Viet Nam should be scaled down in an attempt to initiate peace discussions among the major powers including Red China. The war in South Viet Nam, he said, can no longer be described as a "fight for democracy."

While he avoided any personal assessment of the situation in Viet Nam at the news conference, Dirksen said that opinion polls indicated a downward shift in public support for Johnson's policies there.

He said he has the feeling the majority of the people are confused and frustrated by the seeming instability of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government. Dirksen added that they need more information about the situation in Saigon.

Grant Pay Raises To Employees in Effort to Halt Personnel Turnover

In an effort to halt a serious rate of employee turnover, the Missouri State Highway Commission has authorized pay increases for most Department employees beginning with the May paychecks.

The Commission authorized the increases on recommendation of Chief Engineer M. J. Snider, who said a heavy loss of employees is having an adverse effect on the Department's ability to carry on the state road program.

Pay increases range from a maximum of five per cent down to less than one per cent, depending on the relation of the employees' present salary to the salary range permitted for their particular job classification.

Snider said employees receiving the full five per cent raise generally are those in the lower paid jobs, while employees in higher paying positions are receiving the lesser percentages of increase.

The pay raises are being received by all but about 150 of the 6,098 salaried personnel on the Department's payroll as of May 1. Those not receiving a raise are top management people whose salaries are limited by statute and some employees who are at the top of the salary range for their job classification.

Snider reported that latest separation records show that employee turnover in the Department now is running about 17 per cent a year.

Particularly harmful, he said, is that many of the employees leaving the Department for better paying jobs elsewhere are experienced people with several years of service.

"The turnover rate is serious in all job classifications in the Department -- professional, technical, office and field," Snider explained. "Geographically, the most critical employee shortages exist in the metropolitan areas of St. Louis and Kansas City, where we are understaffed. But the turnover is also serious in the rest of the state."

The chief engineer said competition for employees in all fields has intensified greatly in the last few months, making it difficult for the Department to retain present employees and attract qualified new people.

One example of the competition, Snider said, is the fact that the Department was able to hire only one civil engineering graduate from college campuses this Spring, despite interviewing and extending job offers to 45 prospects.

On-campus recruiting efforts were carried on at the University of Missouri in Columbia and Rolla, St. Louis University, Washington University, the University of Arkansas, the University of Kansas and Kansas State University.

In previous years the Department usually has had job acceptances by 30 to 35 per cent of the civil engineering graduates to whom offers were extended, Snider reported.

The pay increases will add $129,425 a month to the Department's payroll, including $14,064 to the administrative payroll and $115,361 to the road fund payroll.

Snider emphasized that the payroll of the Department, with the salary increases, will be within the appropriations made by the General Assembly.

The chief engineer said the pay increases are narrowing the gap between the lower and higher paid job classifications to a level inconsistent with normally accepted business practices. But he said that because of the emergency situation existing, it was necessary the action be taken in an effort to make the Department more competitive in the job market so as to keep the state's road program moving with maximum efficiency.

The chief engineer reported that in an action entirely separate from the granting of pay raises, the Commission revised upward the maximum possible to be paid for almost all jobs in the Department. The revisions were ten per cent, except where it was necessary to reduce this percentage due to legislative salary restrictions.

Those revisions were made, Snider said, to allow many of the pay increases which now are being granted, as well as to give most employees an opportunity to earn merit increases in the future.

Toughness Provides Stability In Viet Nam

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON AP - The one hope for stability in South Viet Nam at this time seems to be iron - fisted toughness, not democracy, and it may long remain that way.

The American ideal of the good society in Viet Nam would be a democratic one. But events over the years -- particularly recent events -- throw doubt on the readiness of the Vietnamese for democracy. They never had it.

One government after another was swept out by plots, ambitions, and protests, especially by Buddhists leaders, until the present group of generals took over under Premier Nguyen CAO Ky.

He promisd elections and a constitutional government within a year. This didn't satisfy the Buddhist leaders. In trying to throw him out, they revolted at Da Nang.

This revolt, judging from what happened, was poorly planned and badly organized. Although Buddhists make up 80 per cent of the population, in the showdown they lacked mass support. Ky used the army to crush the uprising.

Unrest continues in the northern city of Hue and, to some extent, among Buddhists in the capital of Saigon. But Ky, according to reports from Saigon, is confident he can squelch this kind of opposition.

Richard Critchfield of the Washington Evening Star, writing out of Viet Nam, has present a disgusting picture of the Da Nang Buddhists who wanted a hand, and no doubt eventual control, in running the government.

He describes them as a bunch of callous, cold-blooded, merciless opportunists who exploited the dead and the wounded for their own ends. He writes of their "incredible cynicism toward human life."

His story -- of how the Buddhists enticed newsmen into their pagoda and then tried to use them as hostages against attack by Ky's troops -- reveals how the Buddhist rebels lost their zeal for revolt under fire.

For days, he said, Buddhists had shot into neighborhood houses and "then collected wounded and killed and paraded them before the press as victims of government repression."

Yet, these are the same men who have been demanding constitutional government. Their performance was irresponsible and cruel. It is still not clear whether they are in league with the North Vietnamese Communists.

If Ky goes through with his plans for a democratic government, the Buddhist leaders will want a large and no doubt dominant role in it. But it hardly seems possible after the disclosures at Da Nang that they want a democratic government or any kind of government -- but a Buddhist dictatorship.

Therefore, it should not be surprising if Ky and the generals refuse to let the elections occur within a year or for some time afterward because the Buddhist leaders project a vision not of order but of anarchy.

One thing is sure: the U.S. war against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese Communists cannot continue if South Viet Nam disintegrates much further into the kind of brainless disorder the Buddhist leaders sought.

If there is a connection between the Buddhist leaders and the Communists it may begin to show up if Ky restores stability to South Viet Nam. So long as the Buddhists revolted, the Reds could hope for internal collapse.

That would have saved them a need for a total showdown with the United States. If there's no internal collapse, they will have to rely on war.

Toughness Provides Stability In Viet Nam

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON AP - The one hope for stability in South Viet Nam at this time seems to be iron - fisted toughness, not democracy, and it may long remain that way.

The American ideal of the good society in Viet Nam would be a democratic one. But events over the years -- particularly recent events -- throw doubt on the readiness of the Vietnamese for democracy. They never had it.

One government after another was swept out by plots, ambitions, and protests, especially by Buddhists leaders, until the present group of generals took over under Premier Nguyen CAO Ky.

He promisd elections and a constitutional government within a year. This didn't satisfy the Buddhist leaders. In trying to throw him out, they revolted at Da Nang.

This revolt, judging from what happened, was poorly planned and badly organized. Although Buddhists make up 80 per cent of the population, in the showdown they lacked mass support. Ky used the army to crush the uprising.

Unrest continues in the northern city of Hue and, to some extent, among Buddhists in the capital of Saigon. But Ky, according to reports from Saigon, is confident he can squelch this kind of opposition.

Richard Critchfield of the Washington Evening Star, writing out of Viet Nam, has present a disgusting picture of the Da Nang Buddhists who wanted a hand, and no doubt eventual control, in running the government.

He describes them as a bunch of callous, cold-blooded, merciless opportunists who exploited the dead and the wounded for their own ends. He writes of their "incredible cynicism toward human life."

His story -- of how the Buddhists enticed newsmen into their pagoda and then tried to use them as hostages against attack by Ky's troops -- reveals how the Buddhist rebels lost their zeal for revolt under fire.

For days, he said, Buddhists had shot into neighborhood houses and "then collected wounded and killed and paraded them before the press as victims of government repression."

Yet, these are the same men who have been demanding constitutional government. Their performance was irresponsible and cruel. It is still not clear whether they are in league with the North Vietnamese Communists.

If Ky goes through with his plans for a democratic government, the Buddhist leaders will want a large and no doubt dominant role in it. But it hardly seems possible after the disclosures at Da Nang that they want a democratic government or any kind of government -- but a Buddhist dictatorship.

Therefore, it should not be surprising if Ky and the generals refuse to let the elections occur within a year or for some time afterward because the Buddhist leaders project a vision not of order but of anarchy.

One thing is sure: the U.S. war against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese Communists cannot continue if South Viet Nam disintegrates much further into the kind of brainless disorder the Buddhist leaders sought.

If there is a connection between the Buddhist leaders and the Communists it may begin to show up if Ky restores stability to South Viet Nam. So long as the Buddhists revolted, the Reds could hope for internal collapse.

That would have saved them a need for a total showdown with the United States. If there's no internal collapse, they will have to rely on war.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

The requirements of military secrecy in wartime brought a considerable development of personnel security screening, not only of the military and of Federal government employees but of private employees in war plants and, in particular, the new and super - secret atomic energy industry. As early as 1942 the War Department instituted a strenuous, but generally voluntary, program for the "discharge of subversives from private plants of importance to Army procurement." By the end of the war the security officer, with his investigations into individual backgrounds, beliefs, and associations, was a familiar figure. His dossiers and fingerprint files were beginning to accumulate, but his efforts were not yet systematized on the ground scale later adopted. Other protections against subversion were developed as war measures. Few have since been willing to defend one of them, the mass evacuation from the West Coast of persons of Japanese ancestry; yet the principle behind it was later to be embedded in the Internal Security Act. The war was not yet over when the discovery of large numbers of classified papers (few, apparently, of much real security significance) in the office of the small magazine Amerasia awoke some interest in Communist espionage and in the seemingly subversive citizens who might supply its agents, but this was of no great popular concern at the time.

The onset of the cold war coincided, however, with two developments which were enormously to expand the popular demand for better defenses against sedition. One was the appearance of the staggering problem of the atomic bomb, the intense debates over a proper policy, and the tremendous emphasis placed upon "keeping the secret from the Russians." The other was the revelation by Igor Gouzenko, the defecting Soviet code clerk, of the existence of extensive Soviet espionage networks in Canada and the United States, largely staffed from natives recruited from the native Communist parties and study cells. With the conviction of the English nuclear physicist, Alan May, these nets were shown to have reached even to the periphery, at least, of the greatest and most jealously-guarded of all national secrets.

OP ART -- EXPERIMENTING with her original design, the Sikeston Art League emblem, Harriet Jones, superviser of Sikeston Public Schools art department and Art League board member, came up with a new design in popular Op art style. Going into a third annual exhibit, the league felt it had represented every technique but this seems to be a new one.

The Holiday Art Exhibit opens Saturday at 10 a.m. and remains open until 10 p.m. Sunday, the exhibit will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Top-of-Range Cookery Gives Taste Tempter

Preparing meals on top of the range is the style reserved for warmer weather when you don't want the oven on for an hour or two or more.

Canadian-style bacon is a tender cut that is cured and smoked. Tasting like ham, it needs only short broiling or pan-broiling to heat and brown for this recipe, advises meat authority Reba Staggs.

A quick-fix pineapple-raisin sauce goes well with this meat which provides a delightful entree with skillet-candied or mashed sweet potatoes, a green salad and a fruit shortcake for a seasonal supper.

Fruited Canadian-Style Bacon

- 8 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut ½-inch thick
- 8 slices pineapple
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 cup pineapple juice
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons cold water

Brown bacon slowly on both sides in frying-pan. Remove bacon. Brown slices of pineapple slightly in drippings. Simmer raisins, pineapple juice and water for 10 minutes. Thicken with a mixture of cornstarch, salt and 2 tablespoons cold water, stirring until the cornstarch is cooked. Return bacon to pan. Pour sauce over the bacon and pineapple and simmer slowly, 15 minutes. 4 servings.

A JUNGLE TRAIL OF VIOLENCE AND DEATH --AND ONLY THE PHANTOM DARES FOLLOW IT!

Two escaped convicts, "Pretty" and Moogar, have hidden out in the jungle, leaving a trail of brutality.

Both are hardened criminals, but even Moogar quails at the ruthlessness of his partner -- who kills for the fun of it!

The Jungle Patrol is unable to cope with this pair.

Then The Phantom takes up the hunt. How will he bring these hardened cons to justice?

You'll find out in the adventure-packed new story in --

OP ART -- EXPERIMENTING with her original design, the Sikeston Art League emblem, Harriet Jones, superviser of Sikeston Public Schools art department and Art League board member, came up with a new design in popular Op art style. Going into a third annual exhibit, the league felt it had represented every technique but this seems to be a new one.

The Holiday Art Exhibit opens Saturday at 10 a.m. and remains open until 10 p.m. Sunday, the exhibit will be open to the public from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Top-of-Range Cookery Gives Taste Tempter

Preparing meals on top of the range is the style reserved for warmer weather when you don't want the oven on for an hour or two or more.

Canadian-style bacon is a tender cut that is cured and smoked. Tasting like ham, it needs only short broiling or pan-broiling to heat and brown for this recipe, advises meat authority Reba Staggs.

A quick-fix pineapple-raisin sauce goes well with this meat which provides a delightful entree with skillet-candied or mashed sweet potatoes, a green salad and a fruit shortcake for a seasonal supper.

Fruited Canadian-Style Bacon

8 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut ½-inch thick
8 slices pineapple
1 cup raisins
1 cup pineapple juice
1 cup water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cold water

Brown bacon slowly on both sides in frying-pan. Remove bacon. Brown slices of pineapple slightly in drippings. Simmer raisins, pineapple juice and water for 10 minutes. Thicken with a mixture of cornstarch, salt and 2 tablespoons cold water, stirring until the cornstarch is cooked. Return bacon to pan. Pour sauce over the bacon and pineapple and simmer slowly, 15 minutes. 4 servings.

Two escaped convicts, "Pretty" and Moogar, have hidden out in the jungle, leaving a trail of brutality.

Both are hardened criminals, but even Moogar quails at the ruthlessness of his partner -- who kills for the fun of it!

The Jungle Patrol is unable to cope with this pair.

Then The Phantom takes up the hunt. How will he bring these hardened cons to justice?

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I was touched by the letter from "Over-Endowed." Several years ago I had her measurements -- and her problems. I could write a book about the cruelty I suffered from members of both sexes.

I tried desperately to achieve recognition for something besides my figure, but it was hopeless. My "assets," which so many girls envied (and so many boys lusted after), brought me nothing but trouble.

Thank God those wretched days are over. What a relief that my once spectacular figure has gone the way of too much flesh. Now I have friends who recognize that I have a bright mind, and a nice philosophy.

Believe me, Ann, it's a lonely world for the Too Beautiful. --ONE WHO WAS

Dear One: It's a lonely world for the dogs, too -- probably lonelier.

Can it be that you really developed your bright mind and your nice philosophy when you could no longer count on the external trappings? This sometimes happens and I'll bet it happened to you, Doll.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a mother and two sisters who ran my life. They pushed me into a loveless marriage with a man who was too old for me. After 10 years of misery I somehow found the courage to take a stand against my family and get a divorce. The only good thing that came out of that marriage was a wonderful son.

Two years after my divorce I married a marvelous man and we moved to another state. He has been a devoted husband and father and I now know the meaning of real contentment.

I stayed away from my family for seven years. Their letters were filled with hostility and resentment. Every time I got a letter from home I'd also get an eye-piercing headache.

A few months ago I decided to go home and see if I couldn't make peace with my family. I wasn't in the house 15 minutes when my mother and sisters suggested that I take the boy to see his father. In the 10 years that has passed the man had not tried, even once, to contact his son. Neither had he offered one penny toward the boy's support. Yet my family kept saying, "But he IS the boy's father . ."

I refused to budge and a big fight followed. They said I was the meanest person who ever lived and crazy besides. What do you think about this? -- CINDERELLA

Dear Cinderella: The decision to see or not to see your ex-husband was yours to make. The family should not have even mentioned his name. It is obvious that they learned nothing in those long seven years. The best thing that exists between you and your relatives is distance. Keep it that way.

Confidential to SICK OF SCHOOL AND WASTING MY TIME: I know all about the dropouts who made it big--the Wright Brothers, Picasso, Marconi, Thomas Edison and Mark Twain, to name a few--but they didn't bum money off their dads and go riding around on motorcycles. They managed to educated themselves. Stay in school and get your deploma or you'll regret it.

Do you feel ill at ease . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booket, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

matter of fact

The European corn borer is one of the most devastating insect pests of American agriculture on record. It first started damaging corn in New England, in 1916-17, where the manufacture of brooms from broomcorn imported from Europe was a principal industry. The corn borer next spread to the Midwest, America's "corn belt." In 1949 alone this pest caused the loss of 315 million bushels of corn.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, . . . they wondered; and they recognized that they had been with Jesus. (Acts 4:13, RSV)

PRAYER: O God, help us to act in a Christlike manner, as ambassadors of Christ. We pray that in our spriit and by our actions others will recognize that we have been with our Master and are His disciples. In His name we ask. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I was touched by the letter from "Over-Endowed." Several years ago I had her measurements -- and her problems. I could write a book about the cruelty I suffered from members of both sexes.

I tried desperately to achieve recognition for something besides my figure, but it was hopeless. My "assets," which so many girls envied (and so many boys lusted after), brought me nothing but trouble.

Thank God those wretched days are over. What a relief that my once spectacular figure has gone the way of too much flesh. Now I have friends who recognize that I have a bright mind, and a nice philosophy.

Believe me, Ann, it's a lonely world for the Too Beautiful. --ONE WHO WAS

Dear One: It's a lonely world for the dogs, too -- probably lonelier.

Can it be that you really developed your bright mind and your nice philosophy when you could no longer count on the external trappings? This sometimes happens and I'll bet it happened to you, Doll.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a mother and two sisters who ran my life. They pushed me into a loveless marriage with a man who was too old for me. After 10 years of misery I somehow found the courage to take a stand against my family and get a divorce. The only good thing that came out of that marriage was a wonderful son.

Two years after my divorce I married a marvelous man and we moved to another state. He has been a devoted husband and father and I now know the meaning of real contentment.

I stayed away from my family for seven years. Their letters were filled with hostility and resentment. Every time I got a letter from home I'd also get an eye-piercing headache.

A few months ago I decided to go home and see if I couldn't make peace with my family. I wasn't in the house 15 minutes when my mother and sisters suggested that I take the boy to see his father. In the 10 years that has passed the man had not tried, even once, to contact his son. Neither had he offered one penny toward the boy's support. Yet my family kept saying, "But he IS the boy's father . ."

I refused to budge and a big fight followed. They said I was the meanest person who ever lived and crazy besides. What do you think about this? -- CINDERELLA

Dear Cinderella: The decision to see or not to see your ex-husband was yours to make. The family should not have even mentioned his name. It is obvious that they learned nothing in those long seven years. The best thing that exists between you and your relatives is distance. Keep it that way.

Confidential to SICK OF SCHOOL AND WASTING MY TIME: I know all about the dropouts who made it big--the Wright Brothers, Picasso, Marconi, Thomas Edison and Mark Twain, to name a few--but they didn't bum money off their dads and go riding around on motorcycles. They managed to educated themselves. Stay in school and get your diploma or you'll regret it.

Do you feel ill at ease . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booket, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The European corn borer is one of the most devastating insect pests of American agriculture on record. It first started damaging corn in New England, in 1916-17, where the manufacture of brooms from broomcorn imported from Europe was a principal industry. The corn borer next spread to the Midwest, America's "corn belt." In 1949 alone this pest caused the loss of 315 million bushels of corn.

When Jones isn't tied to his news desk in Tulsa, he's off to far places, whipping out columns on his travels. Recent trips have included two circles of the globe and two above the Arctic Circle. He has toured Russia many times and has explored the jungles of Central and South America. On tamer missions he (and his typewriter) spend good portions of their time on planes, trains and ships.
